George Harvey's Legs
The Second Richest Man
Older Than Ku Klux
Bad Things Are Three

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1922, by the International News Service.

George Harvey gives up wearing knee breeches at court and goes back to American trousers even when he sees the King. His "reason" is—his legs are too thin for knee breeches. That's a poor reason. Thin legs are the best. Voltaire had them, also Talleyrand, Thomas Jefferson and others much like Harvey. No one should want calves like George Washington's or the calves that MacMonnies put on his statue of civic virtue. For a man using his brains big muscles are simply a handicap. Each of the billions of cells in the body require so much energy to keep it going. Thin legs mean more energy left over for the brain.

There is competition for the position of "second richest man in the world." Mr. Rockefeller is generally admitted to be number one and strictly hors concours.

As to number two, some say it is Mr. Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury. Others say it is Thomas F. Ryan of New York street cars and African mines; others that it is Mr. George F. Baker, head of New York's First National Bank, who has built up railroads and many other things.

Some even say that Mr. Baker is the richest man in the world, but doesn't say so out of regard for Mr. Rockefeller, older than himself. Such men feel about money as others do about a golf score. More important is the fact that Mr. Baker is busy, ACTING like the richest man in the world. He gave away a million dollars the other day to the Metropolitan Museum of Art, with no strings attached except that they mustn't lose the money.

Now he gives $500,000 to a hospital, and it is understood that as long as his fountain pen holds out he means to continue signing such checks. He will have a long way to go to reach the record of John D. Rockefeller, who gives tens of millions at a time. But a million and a half in one week is a good start.

Mr. Baker is quite old, Mr. Rockefeller older. Mr. Carnegie was old. In former days such old men would have been wondering how they could invest their money in some great tomb or pyramid, or in such a way as to buy a front seat in everlasting glory.

Now they invest the money that opportunity in a great nation has given them, to benefit the people of that nation. That's REAL PROGRESS.

The proposal to discriminate against Jews at Harvard will probably be dropped. It was suggested here that the matter could be attended to, inasmuch as any public institution discriminating against any class of citizens might, and should, be deprived of tax exemption.

Attacks on Jews are largely based on jealousy that touches the pocketbook. That kind of jealousy can be counteracted by another "touch" on another pocketbook—that of the taxpayer.

It is, however, not necessary to pass special laws. Massachusetts, one of the most enlightened States, has a law that authorizes a commission to "probe the opportunity for higher education open to the men and women of this State."

Governor Cox will choose a commission to do the probing, and that should settle it.

Negro students of Harvard say that the Ku Klux Klan has stirred up discrimination. Probably not so. Something much older than Ku Klux is responsible for the attempted discrimination against Jews. Ignorance, jealousy, lack of energy to compete, are forces older than any Ku Klux.

Alle Gute Dinge Sind Drei. That German proverb means "All good things are three." It is the other way around just now with Republican politics. All bad things are three. First it was Beveridge beating the Republican machine in Indiana, then Pinchot in Pennsylvania, now Brookhart beats the machine in Iowa, winning the senatorial race. He is a radical, as Iowa Senators go, and the machine didn't want him.

While this is discouraging to the Republican party, that party should remember that whom he loveth he chasteneth. But whom he chasteneth he does not necessarily exterminate.

Reverse; may make the Republicans think, make them realize that they were elected to run the United States, not to provide Japan's safety, not to police islands appropriated in the Pacific ocean in the co...se of a war.

These setbacks may make the Republicans remember that they were employed to restore prosperity in the United States, to find work for men in the United States, to stop profiteering in the United States, to punish some of the thieves that stole hundreds of millions under the last Democratic administration, with

Maryland Coming Here for Bunker Hill Day

Congressman Peter F. Tague wired from Washington today the information that the commander-in-chief of the Atlantic fleet has promised to send the battleship Maryland to the Charlestown Navy Yard to take part in the Bunker Hill Day celebration June 17.

The ship will arrive at the yard June 16, and will remain until after the celebration is over.

Attempts Suicide

Bridgeport, Ct., June 8.—Attempt to defeat the efforts of her parents to force her to marry a man whom she did not love led Miss Stella Eccles of New Brunswick, N. J., to take poison, according to the police, who interviewed the young woman at the local hospital today, where she is under treatment. Miss Eccles said the wedding was to have taken place Saturday of this week. She is expected to recover, the police say.

PONZI TRUSTEES SUE FOR $1,800,000

The trustees in bankruptcy of Charles Ponzi, jailed "wizard of finance," today filed four suits in the Suffolk Superior Court against Bank Commissioner Joseph C. Allen to recover more than $1,800,000, received by the Hanover Trust Co. from Ponzi either in the form of deposits or in payment of stock of the trust company. On August 10, 1920, the day after Ponzi filed his petition in bankruptcy, he, at the request of the bank officials, the plaintiff says, exchanged a certificate of $1,500,000 for three new certificates of $500,000 each. The trustees claim the original certificate for $1,500,000 is valid and that the transactions which followed were illegal.

MACKEREL PLENTIFUL; WHOLE CATCHES STORED

Mackerel has reached that stage of plenitude in the local and nearby markets that whole trips are being sold for freezing. Today the schooner Ella. M. King sold her entire catch of 30,000 pounds to the Rockport Freezer. The Nirvanna sold her catch of 82,000 pounds to the same freezer yesterday. These fish will be kept in storage until mackerel become scarce, when they will be thawed out and put on the market. Receipts at the pier today totalled 98,000 pounds. The wholesale price ranged from 10 to 11 cents a pound.

Two men, a woman and a girl, victim of the hottest June 8 in the history of the local weather bureau, were taken to the City Hospital and the Haymarket Relief Station before noon today.

They are:

John Walsh, forty years old, of No. 424 West Fourth street, South Boston. Collapsed at Cubb and Washington streets. Taken to City Hospital.

Edward F. Hurley, sixty-four years old, No. 6 Florence street, South End, collapsed on Boston Common. Taken to Relief Station.

Viola Richardson, forty years old, of No. 34 Jersey avenue, Braintree, overcome at Bedford and Washington streets; taken to Relief Hospital.

Barbara Fountain, seventeen, of No. 1178 Boylston street, overcome in front of No. 110 Boylston street. She was treated at the City Hospital and was able to go home.

The victims of the heat wave that swept over Boston yesterday and bids fair to last for some time already number two dead and one dying, together with many heat prostrations through the greater city.

At 2 p. m. the temperature officially recorded stood at 91 degrees, still maintaining its four or five degree lead over the record for the same hours yesterday.

Week-end comfort is promised by the weather man, however. He predicts local showers, with probably a thunderstorm, either tonight or Friday, slightly cooler tomorrow, with moderate southwest winds, and by Saturday, he predicts, the average temperature will probably come down to about 70 degrees.

Retires From Campaign to Succeed Himself and Hurls Hat Into Big Ring

Attorney-General J. Weston Allen stated today he would not be a candidate for re-election to the office of Attorney-General, but said in effect that he would be a candidate for the office of Governor.

This means that the big coming political fight will be waged between Governor Cox and the Attorney General.

The determination of Attorney General Allen to run for governor means that the ranks of the Republican Party will be split wide open. This should be a Democratic year in Massachusetts.

The Republican rift has been growing for many months. At the time former Prohibition Officer Harold D. Wilson raided the G.O.P. party at the Quincy House it nearly ripped the party wide open, but the discipline of the Old Guard asserted itself and the tension relaxed.

The candidacy of the Attorney-General was to be postponed for two years, according to party leaders, but evidently the advice of friends to Attorney-General Allen to capitalize his popularity at its peak has borne fruit.

"During the past four months," reads the official statement of the Attorney-General, "I have been urged by representative Republicans, both men and women, to be a candidate for Governor, and have received offers of support from all parts of the State.

"I have not sought the governorship, but there are conditions under which a citizen should not refuse public service.

"I have the same ideals for the office of the Governor that I had for the office of Attorney-General.

"The work which remains to be done to give permanency to what has been gained in better administration of criminal law and higher standards of service is, for the most part, to be completed in the executive and legislative departments of the government.

"Whether I retire to private life or whether I enter the primaries for the Republican nomination for Governor, I shall decide in a few days."

BLAME USE OF OIL FOR EXPLOSION AT HARVARD

State Fire Marshal George C. Neal today began the final hearing at the State House to determine the cause and place the responsibility for the explosion at the Jefferson cryogenic laboratory at Harvard University on May 19 when two were killed and several injured. Walter Wedgerstate explosive expert, and those who conducted the investigation told Fire Marshal Neal that in their opinion the explosion was caused by the use of oil instead of soap and water in an oxygen compressor.

High School Graduate Who Vanished, Clad in Nightgown

NORAH PASQUALINI

GIRL, ATTIRED IN NIGHTGOWN, VANISHES

Clad in a night gown, an apron and a pair of pumps, Norah Pasqualini, sixteen-year-old Lynn English High School graduate of 1921, of No. 54 Pleasant street, has dropped from sight and search has been started by the Lynn police in Boston, New York and Philadelphia for the girl.

According to the girl's father, Erminio Pasqualini, the girl passed his bedroom door on her way to the bathroom, clad in her nightrobe.

When she did not return to her room Pasqualini, thinking the girl might be ill, went to the bathroom.

No trace of the girl could be found and after searching the house and the neighborhood for several hours, appealed to the police.

Pasqualini told the police the girl was engaged to a young man whose name the police refused to divulge, but because of the girl's fondness for dancing and the movies, the young man left Lynn nine months ago, breaking the engagement. He is now in Philadelphia and the police have communicated with him to determine whether he knows anything about the girl's disappearance.

The girl's father looked with favor on the young man's suit and stated today that he hoped the girl had gone to Philadelphia and will marry the man. The police believe the girl had some clothing "planted" outside her home to make her get away, but the only things in her home that are missing, according to the family, are a pair of pumps and an apron.

MILTON OFFICER SLAIN BY BANDITS IN BLUE HILLS

A dragnet has been thrown out for the slayer of Patrolman Emery H. Farrington of the Milton police, whose body was found today lying in a clearing off Blue Hill avenue at the foot of the Blue Hill reservation.

Patrolman Farrington was killed by a shot from behind, which had entered the back of his head, drilling a neat round hole through the sweat band of his cap and his skull.

Another shot, evidently fired as the stricken policeman was lying on the ground, had pierced his skull just back of the left ear. The man had been dead for more than eight hours when his body had been found. His assailants or their motive are not known, but it is suspected he was slain by bandits.

Farrington had been twenty years on the Milton force, and he leaves a widow and two young children at his home on Hillside avenue, Milton.

Chief of Police Maurice Pierce of the Milton force gave the story of the shooting so far as is now known to a reporter for the Boston American this afternoon.

"The last call from Patrolman Farrington came in at 12:37 last night, three minutes before 1 o'clock. His next call was due at 2 o'clock. The last call came from Box 45, at the foot of Blue Hill, and not very far from the spot where his body was later found.

BODY IS FOUND.

"No call came at 2 o'clock and when 4 o'clock came and there was no call we became worried for Farrington had a reputation for punctuality and accuracy and carefulness second to no officer on our force.

"At 4 o'clock therefore, I ordered

out a searching party. This returned at 8 o'clock with word that they had been unable to get any trace of the missing man. I then took another party out and started myself. At 10 o'clock the body was found by Patrolmen Burns and Lee.

"It was lying in a clearing about 100 yards from the road, not far from Green street, in the Blue Hill reservation. In that locality there are only two houses and they are far away from the clearing.

"Farrington was lying on his left side, his head hanging down, his arms at his side. In his pockets we found his gun, his club and his handcuffs. It is evident that the officer had made no effort to draw any of his weapons.

SHOT FROM BEHIND.

"The first bullet apparently had been fired from some little distance and directly back of Farrington. The bullet, of .32 calibre, had pierced the sweet band of his hat almost exactly in the middle and drilled a neat little hole in the skull.

"Near it and just back of the left ear was another bullet hole. The bullet had evidently been fired while Farrington was lying on the ground. This was a cold-blooded assassination.

"Six feet away from the body was an automobile. It had been abandoned by the thieves who had started to dismantle it, when Farrington interrupted their work. The machine was a Chalmers 1921 model and the registration showed that it was the property of Morris Rosenberg, of No. 325 Lowell street, Lawrence.

"The rims had been taken off, the tires dismantled, the generator, carburetor, lamps, batteries and other things had been taken off and laid on the ground ready for taking away.

"As nearly as we can judge from the external signs of the affair, what happened briefly was this:

"After ringing his box Farrington patrolled his beat until he reached a spot in the road directly opposite the clearing which was hidden by the underbrush and trees from his gaze.

"We believe he heard a noise of the robbers at work and instead of going to the nearest box to call for help, proceeded directly through the undergrowth toward the clearing.

"In so doing he must have made a noise which alarmed the robbers, and one of them slipped to one side of the clearing and as the officer emerged shot him down from behind."

FINGER PRINTS.

The body of the dead policeman was turned over to Medical Examiner Jones, who has ordered an autopsy.

A squad of detectives from Boston police headquarters was rushed to the aid of the Milton officers as soon as word of the shooting reached this city.

The police are confident that the auto bandits escaped in a waiting car, for there were no footprints indicating that they fled through the woods.

Inspectors Sheehan and Rollins of the Boston police were sent to take the finger prints on the stolen car, in the hope they will furnish a clew.

Widow Would Give Life to Find Slayer

"I would give my life to find the man, or, the men, who murdered my husband."

"This inhuman tragedy has stunned me. I am numbed from my head to my toes. Only my little children are my comfort."

These are two of the statements that fell from the faltering lips of Mrs. Emery H. Farrington, widow of the Milton police officer shot down by automobile bandits today while on duty.

The gloom of the evil lifting that had come to the little family overspread the home on Hillside street, Milton, where for nearly fifteen years Patrolman Farrington had lived. Eight of them had been with the woman who is now his widow.

Dry eyed and with fingers that picked unceasingly at the becoming housedress, the young widow gathered her two baby boys about her and looked at the cabinet picture of their father in his uniform.

"I am too numbed yet to talk about Emery," she said. "He was my man—my husband. No woman ever had a better husband than he has been to me in sickness, trouble and worry. Always he has been patient, never cross no matter how irritable I might become. And now—"

She stopped, and once more the nervous fingers began picking at the dress and her eyes turned back to the photograph.

Ralph, one and one-half years old clambered into his mother's lap and put his little arms about her, crying for the pain he felt but did not understand. Six-year-old Emery H., Jr., stood manfully at his mother's knee.

He knew that misfortune had come to them, but was too young to grasp its significance.

LETTER A CLEW IN THE WARD MYSTERY

White Plains, N. Y., June 8.—Another clew tending to substantiate the story of James J. Cunningham that Walter S. Ward shot and killed Clarence Peters of Haverhill, Mass., at the Ward home in New Rochelle, on the night of May 15, bobbed up today.

The new clew was in the form of a letter, unsealed and unstamped, which Benjamin Kendall, a White Plains garage employe, turned over to the authorities with the explanation that he found it in the coupe of J. Franklin Burke of Scarsdale, left with him Monday night to be washed. The letter, addressed to Mrs. Charles Burke of Mantle Highlands, N. J., read in part, according to Kendall:

"Fran was there when it happened and left at 10:30. The glass that they found in the driveway was not from Ward's car at all. It came from mine. Walt didn't arrive until 9:30, although Beryl was waiting."

ASKED FOR LETTER.

Kendall declared today that when Mrs. Burke called for the coupe last Tuesday, she inquired anxiously after the letter.

Mr. Burke, who is connected with a New York woolen company, declared the letter had no bearing on the Ward case, and that neither he nor his wife had attended a card party at the Ward home on the night of the killing.

Referring to the statement concerning the broken glass in the letter, he admitted the glass in his car had been broken accidentally.

Mrs. Alfred H. Hook, who lives across the street from the Wards, and whose Christian name, Frances, is abbreviated to "Fran" by her close friends, admitted to newspapermen today she was at the Ward card party on the night of the Peters shooting, she said Mrs. Burke was there also.

"Was there any shooting in the Ward house?" she was asked.

"Positively none—there was no disturbance of any kind," she said.

GRAND JURY PROBE.

Mrs. Hook declared she had not seen Peters about the place and that there had been no disturbance there.

The Grand Jury was to renew its probe today.

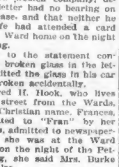
Determined to obtain the names of the guests in the Ward home on the night of May 15, District Attorney Weeks was to recall Mrs. Beryl Ward, wife of young Ward, and re-question her regarding the events of that night. In her testimony Tuesday she fought off questions with a weak memory.

Two neighbors of the Wards, Mrs. W. L. Shuman, and Mrs. A. J. Hook, also were to appear.

BROCKTON MAN MUST PAY CHILD'S SUPPORT

Brockton, June 8.—Dr. Winfield Scott Garland of this city was today adjudged the father of a child born to Mrs. Eva M. Guay last February.

In announcing his findings Judge King in District Court ordered the dentist to pay $5 a week toward the support of the little one. During the trial it was shown Mrs. Guay lived at the Garland home in Avon from March until October in 1921.



Mrs. Eva Guay.

Mrs. Guay admitted she was the same Eva Guay who figured as the first wife of "William E. Wilson," wealthy shoe manufacturer of London Ont., when Wilson was arrested on a bigamy charge in Canada in 1918.

Mrs. Guay said she met and lived with Dr. Garland as his wife at Summerside, Prince Edward Island.

BOY SHOT; "ACCIDENT," SAYS PAWTUCKET YOUTH

Pawtucket, R. I., June 8.—Ernest Medeiros, fourteen years old, is in a critical condition at Memorial Hospital. He was shot in the jaw by James Gaudet, seventeen-year-old textile striker. Champou in court this morning said he was cleaning his revolver when it was discharged. "I did not know the weapon was loaded," he said.

KANSAS CITY MEN ARE BOSTON'S GUESTS

The Kansas City delegates to the city planning convention which adjourned yesterday in Springfield were the guests of the City of Boston. Mayor Curley turned them over to Michael J. Ward, and Joseph Smith, of the Community Industrial Bureau to be entertained. They took an automobile ride through the city, which included the park system.

MERGER PROMOTER IS DECLARED IN CONTEMPT

New York, June 8.—Thomas L. Chadbourne, called the "uniting genius" in the merger of Inland, Republic and Midvale steel companies today was declared in contempt by the chairman of the Lockwood committee for his failure to answer intermeyer counsel for the committee.

"I'm Lucky, After All," Declares Maude Packard, Who Was Warned of Leonard Roland in Time

BY GRACE DESCHAMPS.

Childhood sweethearts—

Friends, when he served overseas; betrothed when he returned.

Less than twenty-four hours before their marriage—while they sat together planning—a telegram.

"Object to my husband getting married," it read.

It was from HIS WIFE!

Studying soberly the shiny new shoes and silk stockings that she had bought so happily a month ago and which were to have been part of her wedding finery, Miss Maude Packard, twenty-one, in her father's home at Manchester Green, Conn., passed judgement on Leonard G. Roland, the man.

"He's a crook," she said, simply.

WEARS WEDDING SHOES.

She thrust out her slender foot. "They're pretty, aren't they?" she asked. A curious smile that was a smile, nevertheless, seemed to indicate an innate gameness. "They were my wedding shoes," she continued, "and I guess I may as well wear them now."

A rapid succession of events such as might have been beautifully into a moving picture, "continuity" preceded the denouement when Chief Gordon of the Manchester police drove up to the Packard home and strode in unannounced upon Rowland and the girl, who were to have been made man and wife the next day.

"You're the luckiest girl in the whole country," was the chief's only comment to the unhappy girl when she finished reading the telegram he had received only ten minutes before from Rowland's outraged wife in Ottawa, Canada.

"I certainly didn't think so, then," Miss Packard said, "but I'm a lucky girl after all, I guess."

Chief Gordon then turned his attention to Rowland. "Skunk" was the unlovely word that his tongue hit upon time after time as he sought some satisfying characterization of the frightened man before him.

KNEW HIM A LIFETIME.

"Everything was a mystery," said Miss Packard. "I couldn't believe my own eyes when I had read the telegram. Leonard denied up and down to Chief Gordon and the rest of us, that he was married.

"We had known Leonard all our lives. My father knew his when Leonard was only five years old. I had supposing it were true, how on earth could that far-away wife know that he was to have married me the next day?

"Chief Gordon didn't know anything about it. Mrs. Rowland's only words were: 'Object to my husband marrying Miss Packard.'"

The unraveling of the mystery brought to light the part played in the drama by a kindly old lady of North Manchester who had loved Rowland as a son but who had chosen at the last moment to sacrifice her love for him rather than to see his selfish infatuation engulf the happiness of the girl he would "marry."

WARNING TO WIFE.

"This woman was Leonard's landlady," explained Miss Packard. "She had mothered him as though he were her own son. In some way, through her associationns with him, she learned of things which led her to believe him married. Thinking it might have been an unhappy chapter in his life, she held her secret. Nobody here knew it, least of all my family or myself.

"Not until Leonard's perfidy had reached an extreme of daring did his friend decide to play against his and gamble upon his wife in Ottawa following her cue. Three days before we were to have been married, she read the announcement of the coming marriage. And then that woman whom I can never thank, sat down and wrote a special delivery to Leonard's wife and the poor soul ran nearly a mile to the railroad station to catch the mail train that day lest her warning reach Ottawa too late to avail anything.

"I've got to thank Mrs. Rowland, too. If she hadn't sent the wire just the time she did, the 'marriage' would be over and I would be in New York with Leonard bound for England or God knows where—our bridges burned and no way for me, at least, to retrace my steps."

HAS HOPE CHEST KEY.

Miss Packard declares that he ran away from an uncongenial stepmother in England and fled to Canada when only fifteen. According to her, he remained in Canada until 1911 when he made a visit back to his boyhood home, and friends in Manchester. He remained only a short time each visit, until 1917 again and this time was drafted.

During his eighteen months' service in France he wrote frequent and passionate letters to Miss Packard.

"He dared to call me up after his deceit was known," said Miss Packard, "and asked me to meet him in Hartford! Later he asked me to meet him here in Manchester and I did—but not ALONE! I am through with him. He has the key to my hope chest and I want that.

But I don't want him."

Wire from Suitor's Wife Saves Girl From Deception

Miss Maude Packard was to have wed Leonard G. Roland at Manchester Green, Conn., when a telegram from Roland's wife in Canada came like a bomb, forbidding the ceremony. Naturally it did not take place and Roland has a double "making good" job on his hands.

DELUDED BRIDE-TO-BE AND HER SUITOR

BRITISH SHELL BELLEEK IN IRISH BATTLE

began at 1 o'clock this afternoon, the British occupying the town several hours later.

At that hour signals were sent up indicating that the British troops were being fired on, while there were bursts of rifle fire from the north.

The British artillery then opened up, landing two shots near the Belleek fort, which is in Free State territory.

Belleek was captured without loss of life. No prisoners were captured.

As the British forward march this morning, special constables, acting as observers, occupied the hilltops. They had been on guard through the night watching the possibility of an attack from the Free State side.

The hills afford a commanding view of Belleek and Maghoreanens Castle. Advance parties of specials held the roads and other strategic points.

The troops engaged in the march are details from three British regiments. Their artillery comprises 4.5-inch howitzers.

A correspondent at Enniskillen telegraphed that an attack was to be made on Belleek.

The program for the Lincolnshire and Staffordshire troops, supported by a battery of howitzers and armored cars, was to endeavor to dislodge the irregulars. Enniskillen, which is the headquarters of the district, was practically denuded of troops this forenoon, while Pettigo, which is isolated on account of the railway being out of commission, contained few soldiers.

SEES COMEDY IN WAR.

"The situation," added the correspondent, "is somewhat gilbertian and could only happen in an Irish war. There is Pettigo in the Free State. Loyalist to a man, now under the authority of British troops, while on the other hand, Beelcek, in Ulster, except for the fort, Catholic to the backbone, is now under the domination of irregulars who are neither Orange nor Free State. This is confusing to an outsider.

"The people of Pettigo are making every effort to retain the British troops until the boundary question is settled and a deputation is going to Belfast to put the case before the Home Secretary."

It was revealed in an investigation that some of the men found dead after the Pettigo battle had papers in their possession showing they came from Glasgow.

Several thousand rebels are reported concentrated at Raphoe, County Donegal, armed with American rifles.

London, June 8 (By International News Service).—Irregulars from the Irish Republican army are concentrating in County Donegal, and are armed with the most modern American rifles, according to a Londonderry dispatch to the Evening News.

Constitution Like Cuba's Urged for Ireland

By International News Service.

London, June 8.—Arthur Griffith, president of the Dail Eireann, Hugh Kennedy, legal adviser of the Irish Provisional government at Dublin, and Kevin O'Higgins of the Dail Cabinet have proposed to the British signatories of the Anglo-Irish peace treaty that the Irish Free State be granted a constitution similar to that of Cuba.

The suggestion was made that the further status of Ireland towards Great Britain should be similar to that of Cuba towards the United States.

The chief business of the Anglo-Irish conversations today was a discussion of the legal aspects of the proposed Irish constitution. Colonial Secretary Winston Churchill and Sir Gordon Hewart represented the British cabinet.

It was said if the Irish were given a constitution with such latitude as that of Cuba, Ireland would have more political liberty than any other British dominion.

British officials are becoming anxious over the prospect of "free and untrammelled" elections in Ireland. News was received today that independent candidates in Kilkenny, Waterford and Mayo Counties have been attacked for opposing the coalition panel candidates.

Premier Lloyd George will not attend the royal reception at Buckingham Palace tonight, but will spend his time studying the Irish constitution and the proposed amendments.

Collins and De Valera at Dail Eireann Session

Dublin, June 8 (By the Associated Press).—The Dail Eireann met at 3:40 o'clock this afternoon with Michael Collins and Eamon De Valera leading opposing sides.

The first item on the agenda was resumption of consideration of the Army Department report. Richard Mulcahy, Minister of Defense, was expected to make a statement regarding the progress in negotiations for army unity.

The attendance was smaller, many members remaining at home to prepare for the coming elections.

BELIEVE BROTHERHOODS MAY OPPOSE RAIL STRIKE

Cincinnati, June 8.—While union heads generally refrained from commenting on the probability of a walkout as the result of the release of strike ballots to 400,000 railway shopmen, some leaders expressed the belief that, although there were grounds for a strike in the railroad industry, it would not be sanctioned unless al of the sixteen brotherhoods and organizations presented a united front. Doubt was expressed that the four transportation brotherhoods would join in such a movement.

BELIEVE GIRL FOUND IN POND WAS SLAIN

Seek Love Clew in Tragedy at Newport; Drop Suicide Theory

Newport, R. I., June 8.—The police today started an investigation to determine whether a disappointed suitor or other person may have had some motive in doing away with Miss Antha Spiratos, young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Spiratos. The body of the girl was fished out of Easton's Pond. Ordinarily the police would have dismissed the case as one of accidental drowning or suicide. Medical Examiner William A. Sherman, however, after performing an autopsy, declared the girl who was twenty-four years old, did not meet her death by drowning. He said:

"No, there are no marks of violence on the body. I do not think the body had been in the water a long time. I am convinced the girl was dead when her body entered the water."

It was said a further autopsy would be made to determine whether the young woman was poisoned.

Antha had been missing from her home since Monday. The police are endeavoring to trace her movements from the time she was last seen. At that time, it was learned she wore a brown coat. This coat was not found when the body was taken from the water. Later the coat was taken to the police station by a cousin of the girl, John Ferguson, who said he had discovered it on the bank of the pond.

This, and the fact that relatives of the girl informed the police that she had been in poor health strengthened the belief that she had committed suicide. Dr. Sherman's emphatic reiteration of his opinion that the girl was alive when her body entered the water, caused the police to pursue the investigation. A search of the girl's effects will be made to find letters which may give them a clew upon which to proceed.

SENATOR REED TAKEN ILL DURING CAMPAIGN

Boston friends today learned of the sudden illness that attacked James A. Reed while he was delivering a speech in Caruthersville, Mo., in his campaign for the Democratic renomination for the United States Senate. He was taken to a hotel and is under the care of physicians.

If Republicans will remember for what they were elected they can overcome the three recent "bad things."

You cannot look at any page of a newspaper, except the sport and financial pages, without saying to yourself, "How much better mothers we have than men; how lucky that children are brought up at the knee of a mother, not a father."

Mrs. Louise C. Ellis, eighty years old, has at last won a long fight to obtain the fortune of her father and mother and the right to be buried in the tomb with her father and mother.

She has recovered hundreds of thousands of dollars, and does not spend on herself ten dollars a week.

Asked what she will do with the money, she replied: "Give it to the poor, of course." Some of it will be given indirectly through hospitals and through the Legal Aid Society, because it helps the poor. Then she will be buried beside her father and mother.

Pedro Nel Ostina, just elected President of Colombia, the little republic south of us, invites young men to go there and get rich. He says the country needs American energy and capital. It has oil enough to supply the world for years. Young men that can afford to travel, and have a little money to invest, might well go to Colombia and look around. But don't go there without money—enough to keep you there and bring you safely back. Write to the American minister there before you start; also to "President Nel Ostina, Republica of Colombia." He'll advise you.

NEW YORK WOMAN ALSO CLAIMS CHRISTINE NILSSON FORTUNE

DISPUTES CLAIMANT IN LYNN

Declares Famous Singer Never Had a Daughter, as Mrs. Murray Says

A rival to Mrs. Sadie M. Murray, No. 37 Marianna street, Lynn, for the $15,000,000 estate left by the famous Swedish singer, Christine Nilsson, has appeared in New York.

She is Mrs. William Weber, sixty-two years old, and she claims that as second cousin of the singer, he, her later and two brothers are next of kin to the singer and so entitled to a share in the estate.

Mrs. Murray of Lynn claims to have been the child of Christine Nilsson, and tells of having been left at an orphanage when but a tiny baby by the singer, who visited the child once or twice after she had been formally adopted.

Mrs. Webber in New York denies Mrs. Murray's claim. She asserts that the singer, although married twice, never had a child.

The second husband of the diva, according to the New York woman, was Count Casa di Mirandi, to whose daughter, the Countess Rosa Casa di Mirandi, Christine Nilsson became devotedly attached, and to whom the singer left all her English property.

Mrs. Murray has taken legal steps to prove her claims to the fortune left by the opera star. She says that she can bring witnesses to substantiate her story of the diva's visit to New England in 1881, and the birth of a daughter to the singer.

The Flapper Visits Marriage Bureau and Gets the "Low Down" on Race Suicide

She Sees Mr. McGlenen Officiate With the "Dumb Doras" and "Dizzy Izzies."

BY THE FLAPPER

The ding-dong season for the Dumb Doras and Dizzy Izzies who don't care what becomes of them is now on at the City Hall. I flapped around there yesterday to see what goes on, and it was more fun than seeing Roosdolph Valentinooo in the jumping tin-types.

Mr. McGlenen, who has been city registrar for almost a million years, and who likes flip flappers the way he likes the Summer itch, was officiating at the marriage license counter when I roller-skated in.

"Do you want a license?" he asked me, looking over his square-cut, silver-rimmed wind-shields with a lot of severity.

"Look again, Major," I said. "Do I look nutty or anything? I only came over to pay you a little social call. How's business?"

"Well, since you ask," said Mr. McGlenen, "it's that bad the department doesn't even pay for itself. One dollar and two cents, please?"

"Sweetie" Produced the Dollar

The last was addressed to a mild-looking youth who stood by the side of a buxom miss.

"But, I thought the war-tax was off of luxuries now?" he objected.

"The two cents is for postage, young fellow," said Mr. McGlenen with dignity. "When 10,000 marriage licenses go through the mail every year it begins to cost a pretty penny."

Still the youth hesitated. Presently he turned to the dream-girl, who was amusing herself with a dime's worth of chewing gum.

"Sweetie," he said plaintively, "I've got the two cents all right, but——"

"Sweetie" disappeared under the counter and came up a second later with a dollar in her hand. Her swain beamed upon her. The license was paid for and put on ice.

That's the way they play the game in Massachusetts. The slip of paper is put away to cool for five days so that if the "interested parties" (that's what the license call 'em) also cool they are out nothing but a dollar.

25 Per Cent. Drop in Licenses

"No, sir," the marriage man resumed when the love-doves had fluttered out, "the business has fallen off more'n 25 per cent. since 1917."

"And what would you say is the reason for that, General?" I asked him.

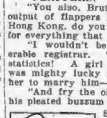
"FLAPPERS!" he roared.

"Quite true, Brutus?" I said. "Does the yearly output of flappers likewise affect the rice crop of Hong Kong, do you suppose? Are we to be blamed for everything that goes wrong?"

"I wouldn't be surprised," answered the venerable registrar. "I tell you I know. I've got statistics! A girl of your age used to think she was mighty lucky if some nice young man asked her to marry him."

"And try the old pork chops for him and iron his pleated buzzum shirts for him and pick up the Sunday papers after him," I interrupted. "Why don't you tell the whole truth, Commodore?"

"But now," continued the sage, pretending he didn't hear me, "look at you! You'd rather chase around and go to movies and jazz dances and paint your faces——"



Middle-Aged Weddings Predominate

"Just a minute, Admiral," I butted in. "If you're going to set yourself up as a savant on flapper styles, you might as well keep up to date. Flappers don't paint their faces any-more-any-more. The newest idea is to let the life-buoy shine out. In a few days you won't see a talc'd nose in town. Scrubbed and shiny—that's the old paprika now.

Naked faces have come back——"

"As I was saying," Mr. McGlenen resumed, patiently, "you'd rather do these things than marry and settle down and behave yourselves. As it is, the only people who're getting married are the middle-aged folks who waited till they saved enough for a little home. Run through the license. What are the ages? Twenty-eight, thirty, forty, even fifty-five. Not a flapper among them! S'terrible. I don't know what the world's coming to!"

Mr. McGlenen turned to a determined looking woman of the last-mentioned age, who had been leaning up against the marble counter, waiting.

"I was saying," she told Mr. McGlenen, "that I've got a license in hock here that I'd like to redeem."

"When did you take it out?"

"Last Christmas," she answered.

"Then it's no good now. You'll have to take out another one."

"What?"

"High, But Worth It"

"They expire after six months. You should have used it sooner."

"Listen to the man talk!" cried the determined looking lady. "Did you want me to bean the party of the second part and marry him while he was unconscious? Do you think I want to get myself arrested for kidnaping? I tell you I had to wait till the wretch made up his mind."

"One dollar, please," said Mr. McGlenen, mildly.

The determined one slapped the bill on the counter.

"It comes high," she said, "but it's worth it. This time it's a go. You watch my smoke."

She held up her right hand, swore to the statements, and ferried out.

Mr. McGlenen polished his eye-glasses on his embroidered silk handkerchief and went on with his oration.

Fears Race Suicide

"I tell you what's going to happen," he said. "I've got charge of the birth certificates, too, you know. And they're fallin' off. Race suicide's the answer. I tell you people aren't having enough children. Some of you flappers should get married and raise families, that's what!"

"Are you that fond of children, Colonel?" I asked him.

"You bet I am!" he declared. "Why, say, if I had a million, d'you know what I'd do?"

"What?"

"I'd build an orphan asylum."

"If you had a million," I said, edging toward the door so I'd get a head start, "you'd have to!"

IT'S NICE TO BE TALL

HARVARD BRIDGE TO BE CLOSED

Mayor Curley will close Harvard Bridge to public travel if at any time it is reported as unsafe by the Public Works Department, he declared today.

His declaration follows the failure of the Legislature to permit the cities of Boston and Cambridge to build a $4,000,000 war memorial bridge to replace the fast crumbling structure.

The Mayor's answer to the Legislature says:

"The flooring of the structure was laid two and a half years ago, and the guarantee of the contractor will expire in 12 months.

"I have instructed the public works commissioner to order the contractor to live up to his contract at once, and in event of failure the department will do the work and charge the cost to the contractor.

"The city will, as far as it is possible, endeavor to keep the bridge in safe condition until the Legislature convenes next year and authorizes the money for construction.

"The increased traffic that will result while the Cottage Farm bridge is being replaced with a new structure will undoubtedly create a serious problem for the present Harvard Bridge, and in the event of the Public Works Department at any time time reporting it to be unsafe I shall not hesitate to order it closed."

The bridge was repaired about two years ago during the Peters administration at a cost of about $250,000.

MILLER CANDY CO. IN BANKRUPTCY COURT

A voluntary petition in bankruptcy was filed today in the Federal Court by the Miller Candy Company, candy manufacturers, of No. 74 Heath street, Roxbury.

The petition gave the assets of the company as $738,513 and the liabilities as $767,295. The Webster and Atlas National Bank holds the largest secured claim, $275,000. Among those who hold unsecured claims are Roy E. Smith, $201,253; Moos & Cabot, $47,300; American Sugar Refinery Company, $27,355; Webster & Atlas National Bank, $75,000; G. W. Sargent, $31,024; S. M. Roberts Co., $19,429, and Fellows & Son, $5,369.

'TWO OUT, UMPIRE UP,' THE CALL

Three Rivers, Que., June 8.—Having done away with two umpires whose decisions displeased them, baseball fans of this city today were waiting with clenched fists, clubs and hard names for the arrival of a new victim.

Meantime the police are searching for some of those who displayed their impatience with Umpire Hamony yesterday by ironing him. Mr. Mahoney let it be known when he recovered his breath that he would leave by boat today for Montreal. Instead, he stole away in the middle of the night, ans who waited at the pier with an assortment of blackjacks were disappointed.

It was the same way last week when they disagreed with the decisions of Umpire Bruneau. They tried to silence his future judgments with a long rope and a noose, but the police interfered.

Harry Poules, proprietor of the local Eastern Canada League Club, has served notice that umpires arbitrate here at their own peril.

FATHER SLAIN IN SON'S LOVE TRAGEDY

Oil City, Pa., June 8.—William McKee, sixty years old, was shot through the heart and instantly killed near his home at West Hicksta, Pa., as he was rushing to the defense of his son Willis, who, it is reported, was being subjected to pressure to marry a girl he is accused of having wronged.

Lyman Huddleston and a nephew, James Huddleston were said to have had young McKee in charge at a spot on the highway near the McKee home. According to the report received by the authorities here the two men were urging McKee at the point of a revolver to marry Miss Elizabeth Huddleston.

The elder McKee rushed from the house armed and is said to have fired at his son's captors.

The fire was returned and McKee fell dead. Lyman Huddleston was wounded. He is charged with murder and his nephew held as an accessory.

KELLY NAMED HEAD OF SOLDIERS' AID BUREAU

Timothy W. Kelly of No. 109 Princeton street East Boston, was today appointed by Mayor Curley as Commissioner of the Soldiers' Relief Bureau of the city at $5,000.

He takes the place left vacant by the resignation of Henry W. McKenna who today became chief probation officer of Suffolk County.

Mr. Kelly is a Spanish War veteran and a Past State Commander of the S. W. V. A. and has been employed by the city in the soldiers' relief department for several years as clerk and visitor.

More than $1,250,000 will be spent during the year for soldiers' relief. The appointment goes to the Civil Service Commission.

STEAMER FROM BALTIC MEETS MANY ICEBERGS

The American steamship Eastern Star arrived today from Baltic ports. She sailed from New York with 1,000 tons of milk and big shipments of other foodstuffs for the Russian Relief Society. She arrived off Reval in a cold snap and was frozen in. For three weeks she remained fast in the ice. On the return trip she ran into a field of icebergs and growlers.

RUSSO-CZECHO-SLAV PACT PURELY ECONOMIC

Prague, Czecho-Slovakia, June 8. (By the Associated Press).—The treaty between Russia and Czecho-Slovakia which was signed here Monday is purely commercial and economic in character. It contains no clauses relating to other than matters of this nature. Much business already has been transacted between the two countries along the lines of the treaty.

BODY FOUND IN MYSTIC RIVER

The body of a man, thought, from correspondence found in the clothing pockets, to be that of Edward J. Nolan of No. 19 Everett avenue, Chelsea, was taken from the Mystic River, near Wellington Bridge, today.

Patrolmen Watson and Bradshaw of the Medford police recovered the body, which apparently had been in the water but a short time. There were no marks of violence, and it is believed that the man either jumped into the river with suicidal intent or fell in accidentally. The body was taken to Beal's undertaking rooms to await positive identification.

SAY GARLAND SEEKS NEW "SOUL MATE"

Middleboro, June 8.—Charles Garland, millionaire idealist, may bring another "soul mate" to live with him in his shack near the North Carver line, but if he does he will be arrested, Chief of Police Alden Sisson stated today.

Young Garland, who has left his young wife and their two young children, and who has lost interest in his former "soul mate," Lillian Conrad, is now reported remodeling a chicken house to serve as his next love nest.

The 22-year-old idealist is quoted as saying that love is necessary to man's spiritual development. He does not say whether his next "soul mate" has been selected or not, but Chief Sisson makes it plain that if he does select one no more philandering or free loving will be tolerated in this township.

BAR HOSPITAL FOR VETS IN BLUE HILLS

The House of Representatives today refused to admit a petition of Representatives Hines of Boston for the cession of land in Blue Hills to the United States government for a hospital for veterans. Representatives Harrington of Fall River and McCormack of Boston dissented from the adverse report of the Committee on Rules. The House also refused to admit the order indorsing Northampton as the site for such a hospital; also the order for a rest camp for soldiers.

NEWTON PASTOR DIES ON TRAIN

Reverend Julian E. Jaynes, pastor-emeritus of the First Unitarian Church of West Newton, of which he was actively in charge for more than thirty-eight years, died of heart disease on the train on the way to his Summer home in Prince Edward Island. He had been ill for several weeks.

His was born in Virginia sixty-eight years ago, of old Yankee stock. His family moved North soon after, and he graduated from Harvard Theological School in 1883. He went at once to West Newton, which is the only pastorate he held.

Following the death of his first wife, a St. Paul woman, he married Carol M. Bullard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Bullard of West Newton.

He leaves three children, Helen, Julian C., Jr., and Robert, besides his widow.

The bells in West Newton were tolled in his honor at noon today. The funeral will be held at the church at 3 p. m. Sunday.

BLOCK MOVE TO REPORT BONUS TO SENATE

Washington, June 8.—A second bonus petition containing 1,000,000 names was presented to the Senate today by Senator McCumber, Republican, of North Dakota. McCumber said he would not bring the petition into the Senate chamber "because of its tremendous bulk, but he asked that its provisions be inserted in the Congressional Record. There was no objection.

Washington, June 8 (By International News Service)—A parliamentary fight developed in the Senate today from the moment Senator McCumber, Republican, of North Dakota, brought in his report on the Soldier Bonus Bill with a report recommending its passage.

Senators Underwood of Alabama and Williams of Mississippi, Democrats, both objected to the Senate's receiving the report and this led to a wordy wrangle in which McCumber gave notice he would not take up the bill for the present if the Senate accepted the report. Unanimous consent was necessary to present the bill and report.

McCumber explained that the bill, a modification of that passed by the House, was intended to "correct the inequalities suffered by those who performed actual soldiers' duties and received meagre soldiers' wages" and excluded from its benefits "all those who were given commissions while performing merely clerical work in the departments."

HIGH OFFICERS BARRED.

Its benefits were also limited to those below the grade of captain in the army or marine corps and lieutenant in the navy, he stated.

In discussing the application of the foreign debt to the bonus, McCumber expressed the hope that the World War Debt Commission would make such progress toward refunding the demand obligations of foreign countries into long term obligations as to secure the latter "in the very near future" and render it possible for the foreign governments "to provide for the immediate payment of interest thereon" so that such interest "can be used toward defraying the expenses" of the bonus.

ENGLAND'S PAYMENTS.

"The budget recently presented to the House of Commons provides for the installment of interest due the United States on the indebtedness of Great Britian payable Nov. 15, 1922," McCumber pointed out, "in view of this fact it is believed that the United States can count on receiving interest payments from England from now on, such payments aggregating about $200,000,000 per annum.

"The March, 1922, revised estimates of receipts for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1923, make such an estimate of $226,000,000 for interest on foreign obligations.

"This would be nearly three times the amount necessary to meet the obligations created by this bill for the first two years."

The highest cost the bill would impose would be $4,446,345,975, McCumber estimated, but only in the event if all the veterans should avail themselves of the 20 year endowment insurance certificate plan, with its borrowing provision.

PAYMENTS OVER 40 YEARS.

"But even if this were possible" he added, "The payments would be scattered over forty or more years." His judgment being that many ex-service men would not actually apply for compensation until they required it, or for at least a number of years after the bill became a law. The actual estimate cost of the various forms of compensation provided by the bill, he figured, however, at $3,845,659,481 on the basis that 75 per cent. of the ex-service men would take the insurance certificate plan, 2½ per cent. farm home and land settlement aid and 2½ per cent. vocational training, while but $15,000,000,000 would be needed to meet the provision for a cash bonus for only those entitled to $50 or less.

"It is the opinion of your committee that during the next three year period the payments under this bill can be made without additional taxation."

CORK WELCOMES BOSTON IRISH EXCURSION SHIP

Cables from Queenstown today announce the arrival at ten o'clock last night of the Cunarder Samaria with 700 Irish excursionists on board. The Samaria, sailed from Boston May 31 with 1,100 passengers. The cables stated that the Cobh Urban Council visited the ship and welcomed the excursionists.

At a high mass aboard ship Sunday morning, Rev. James F. Grimes of St. John's Church, Roxbury, and Rev. C. B. Sheridan, recently ordained by Cardinal O'Connell, were among the seven clergymen who participated in the services.

Mother of Three Demands that Girl 'Love Pirate' Who Stole Husband Pay the Penalty

Breaks Silence of Years and Insists That Erring Mate Must Be Humiliated

"My husband's love for other women has ruined my life. It has made my life a perfect hell for the past seven years. I cannot stand it any longer. I have kept quiet for years because of my children, but now I shall keep silent no more.

"My husband must pay—not in money but in humiliation. The woman who has stolen him from me must also pay. She has helped my husband drive me nearly insane. He is a love pirate and will have to pay the penalty."

The speaker was Mrs. Mary A. Bouchie of Bennington street, East Boston, wife of William F. Bouchie, former cashier of the now defunct Old Colony Foreign Exchange Company, which was known 10 years ago as the rival of Ponzi's Securities company and which was closed by the State authorities shortly after the crash of Ponzi's venture.

The woman who Mrs. Bouchie declares has stolen her husband away is Miss Catherine Loughlin, also known as Katherine Putnam or Katherine Sawyer. Mrs. Bouchie charges that the Loughlin girl and her husband are now located at Nantasket.

Charges of a serious nature are brought by Mrs. Bouchie are now pending against Bouchie and the Loughlin girl in the Roxbury court. The case has been continued until June 20. At that time Mrs. Bouchie promises startling disclosures.

Mrs. Bouchie declared today that the Loughlin girl is the same girl who Mrs. Bouchie caught in a compromising situation with her husband in a Wilmington camp last August. At that time Bouchie gave his right name to the police who were called in, but the girl gave her name as Katherine Putnam of Hull. Mrs. Bouchie, who broke into the camp and surprised the couple, declares that the Putnam girl and the Loughlin girl are the same.

The married life of the Bouchies began ten years ago, with an elopement. The pair met at a dance in East Boston, two weeks after their first meeting they ran away to Portland, Me., where they were married.

"Why, Billy asked me to marry him the first night we met. He was simply wild about me. He made violent love to me and swept me off my feet," said Mrs. Bouchie. Little did I think then that he would soon turn away from my kisses and fairly revel in the kisses of other women.

"We had been married about three years when he tired of me. He turned to other women for his good times. Things were bad, and then worse. I thought I could not stand it. But my children kept me quiet.

MRS. MARY A. BOUCHIE AND HER CHILDREN

MARRIAGE OF MARIE BRINGS OUT ROYALTY

Belgrade, June 8 (By the International News Service).—All Jugoslavia was in attire today for the marriage of King Alexander and Princess Marie, daughter of King Ferdinand and Queen Marie of Rumania. Marie will be the first Queen to reign in Belgrade in nearly twenty years. The city is filled with visitors from all parts of Europe and all the European courts are represented. The demonstration was the greatest here since the armistice. All the hotels are filled to overflow and the streets and parks were all with sleepers. Hundreds of additional electric lights will make the city a blaze of light every night during the balance of the week.

Princess Irene, Italian noble.

The marriage ceremony in the cathedral was accompanied by ancient rites that have been cussary in Balkan royalty for centuries. A strip of cloth was placed in the chief chamber of the palace and the Queen stepped over it. It was symbolic of the old custom of crossing the moat by which its significant that the bride had left home of her parents and had fled the home of her husband.

The old saying that it is not a bath tub in Balkans hasen upset by King Alexander, s had a large private bath installed for his bride.

THOUSANDS OF JEWS SLAIN IN UKRAINE

London, June 8 (By International News Service).—Thousands of Jews are reported to have been killed and wounded in recent disorders in Ukrainia, according to an Exchange telegram from Helsingfors today.

While there have been reports of anti-Soviet outbreaks in Ukrainia from time to time, there were no indications that the fighting was so violent as to involve thousands of casualties.

There has been no previous news of such massacres.

Bucharest, June 8.—Refugees from the Russian famine areas are pouring over the Rumanian frontiers, and it is estimated there are now 18,000 Jews from Russia or Bessarabia attempting to obtain visas to their Rumanian passports from the American Consulate.

All are endeavoring to secure places on the list for July 1, when Rumania's new quota for emigration to the United States begins under the American Immigration Law.

AUTO HEADLIGHT BARES HIS CAUSE FOR DIVORCE

New York, June 8.—William Stevens of Central Valley, N. J., bases his suit for divorce on what he claimed he saw when he trailed Mrs. Stevens and a traveling salesman in an auto and cast his searchlight on their car parked in a lonely road.

Spiritualists May Be Unconscious Radio Receivers

By Associated Press.

Rome, N. Y., June 8.—"Spiritualists may be high-frequency radio receivers and not know it," asserted Professor William C. Ballard, professor of electrical engineering at Cornell University, addressing the Rome Radio Club.

Radio, heat and light waves and the waves of the X-ray, he explained, were all of the same sort, electro-magnets, but in between the heat and radio waves was an unexplored range of frequency.

FEAR MURDER IN DEATH OF MAN ON TRACKS

Danielson, Ct., June 8.—The body of a man apparently sixty years old, believed to have been murdered, was found horribly hangled on the tracks of the New London, Norwich and Worcester branch of the New Haven road today, shortly after a northbound freight train had crashed into a pile of ties that had been securely wired to the rails.

The engineer of the train saw the ties just in time to clamp on the brakes so that, although his engine struck the obstruction, it did not leave the track and none of the cars were damaged.

Investigation disclosed the body lying beside the ties where it had been flung by the pilot, after being so badly mangled that identification is almost impossible.

State and railroad police are working on the theory that the man was murdered and then placed on the rails to conceal the crime.

They admitted, however, the possibility that the man was at work wiring the ties to the track in an effort to wreck a train, when he was taken unawares and killed.

BANDIT IDENTIFIES TWO IN GRAIN STORE HOLDUP

At the trial of Albert Safallo of Roslindale and Joseph A. Visconte of Everett in the Middlesex Superior Court, Bartolomeo Puma of Framingham turned State's evidence. He identified the two men as members of a gang of five which held up the hay and grain store of Curley Brothers, in February 1921.

Puma said that he was one of three men who actually did the "sticking up." The other two escaped. Safallo and Visconte were with the others who planned the robbery, he testified.

OUST TEACHER AFTER DANCE IN SCHOOL

By the Associated Press.

Eminence, Kan., June 8.—Not counting prairie dogs and jackrabbits, this Western Kansas village had 92 inhabitants at last count, most of whom do not consider dancing sinful. But because she permitted a dance to be held in the schoolhouse the "schoolmarm," Mrs. Clara White, has had her teaching certificate revoked by Miss Lorraine Wooster, State Superintendent of Education.

Eminence is thirty miles from a railroad. Amusements are not exactly plentiful.

Mrs. White says, however, that since she allowed a dance to be held in the school house and attended, she has been informed by the State Superintendent of Education that she has broken Kansas laws and trifled with the dignity of the Commonwealth. For that reason she has been officially informed that her teacher's certificate will not be renewed.

Mrs. White has written, saying there was not a thing objectionable about the dance and it was a perfectly proper use for a schoolhouse outside of teaching hours. Miss Wooster, the State superintendent, known as an inveterate foe of tobacco, takes a different view. Dancing, she says, is particularly heinous in a school teacher, and when the offence takes place within the very portals of the school the offence comes pretty near being lese majeste.

MASS DISOBEDIENCE REJECTED IN INDIA

London, June 8 (By the Associated Press).—The working committee of the Indian National Congress, it is stated in dispatches from Lucknow received here today, has rejected a proposal for beginning mass civic disobedience, beginning in September. It has also defeated a proposal to boycott all British goods, on the grounds of the unfeasibility of this project.

ASK BETTER TRAIN SERVICE TO BEACH

A petition is being circulated and will soon be forwarded to the New Haven Railroad officials asking that the old connections at Nantasket Junction with the "midnight" train be restored. With the discontinuance of this connection there is no service from Boston for Nantasket after 9 o'clock, when the boats stop.

STUDENTS PROTEST AS CORPS IS ABOLISHED

Central Fall, R. I., June 8.—Because the Central Falls schoool committee has abolished the famed school cadet corps, state champions for years, students in the school have circulated petitions in protest. A formal protest has been issued to Superintendent of School Robert K. Bennett.

PERMIT ROADS TO FILE NEW FREIGHT RATES

Washington, June 8.—The Interstate Commerce Commission today granted special permission to all railways and electric lines to file new tariffs on freight rates, based upon the reductions announced two weeks ago. Three days' notice is required. The new rates become effective July 1.

FOOD COST DROPS, BUT STILL IN THE CLOUDS

From April 15 to May 15 the retail cost of food in Boston decreased 1 per cent., but is still 39 per cent. more than it was in 1913. A decrease of 6 per cent. in the price of food was registered in Boston from May 15, 1921, to May 15, 1922, says the Department of Labor.

PIANOS

CUT PRICE SALE

WHEN you want to buy a piano, no matter what make, come here, where selling pianos is reduced to a science to benefit you. Remember this—if I did not sell pianos much lower than others I would not be, as I am, the largest individual piano retailer in New England. Any piano is just as good if bought here as it would be if bought in the warerooms of its maker. These beautiful instruments, acknowledged to be the world's leading makes, are in this sale at prices that startle the piano world and the piano-buying public, because of the fact that the quotations are so low that they seem ridiculous and almost unbelievable.

In comparison with other prices mine certainly do seem foolishly low, and it would seem to the average person that my prices are TOO low—all out of proportion to the value of the instruments. Be that as it may, I will sell at prices quoted and deliver the goods. Sincerely, J. P. COLLINS.

UNPRECEDENTED EXPANSION-SALE AT SUMMERFIELD'S

FRIDAY AND SATURDAY are the two closing days of our Great Expansion Sale. By that time we expect to clear away enough space through the sale of goods to give the workmen full sway—to break through the brick walls into our adjoining buildings. Because of the extraordinary growth of our business we have been obliged to take over the two adjoining buildings in the rear of our present store. The carpenters and decorators are at work on them now. In order to clear the way for workmen we must dispose of a large quantity of our stocks. The builders need all the available space for the alterations. This sale presents a furniture-buying opportunity to the public which shrewd shoppers should not miss. This is a genuine "honest to goodness" expansion sale—we need the room and, therefore, must move the goods. Look around and see if you can duplicate the values illustrated in this advertisement—we invite comparison. We know after you have shopped around that eventually you will come back to Summerfield's. Our salesmen are paid to help you make selections—not to "sell you" against your own best judgment.

SLAIN WOMAN'S HUSBAND SAYS HE LOVED HER

Adelard Arsenault, whose wife, Mrs. Alice Arsenault, was found stabbed to death in her Columbus avenue home Christmas, 1919, resumed the stand today at the trial of Paul Pappas, Mrs. Arsenault's star boarder, who is charged with killing her.

Cross-examined by Attorney John W. Schenck, Arsenault said he loved his wife but was not jealous of her. They separated two years before her death because of incompatibility, he explained.

The only visit he ever made to her Columbus avenue home, he declared, was shortly after the murder is supposed to have taken place. He went in response to a letter about money. He first called the house on the phone, and failing to get a response went and rang the bell.

A man opened the door a few inches and said Mrs. Arsenault had moved. Arsenault could not identify the defendant Pappas, as the man who opened the door.

In redirect examination by Assistant District Attorney Fielding, he was asked: "You are an Indian, aren't you?" The question was excluded.

Much of the session was taken up by a conference as to the propriety of admitting in evidence a statement made by Pappas to Captain Alnales Armstrong and others at Boston Police Headquarters, where he was grilled after his arrest in Montreal in 1921.

THEY IDENTIFIED BODY OF SLAIN WOMAN

WITNESS IN PAPPAS DEATH CASE

Mrs. Lena Hokor and her husband, who testified to identifying the body of Mrs. Alice Arsenault, victim of brutal murder, at trial of Paul Pappas now going on in Superior Court. It is charged Pappas killed the woman and buried her body in an ash pile.

TREMONT NOT TO BE ONE-WAY STREET

Tremont street, from Scollay square to Boylston street, will not be turned into a one-way thoroughfare, as was suggested by Chairman John H. Dunn of the street commission, said Mayor Curley today.

The Mayor added that the merchants were unanimously against the plan. He is doubtful if the one-way project would help the congested section of the city. The Mayor said:

"I have come to the conclusion that to improve the situation, we would have to take drastic action, perhaps by the expenditure of $50,000,000 for one or two wide thoroughfares.

"I have thought that Tremont street, 100 feet wide south of Dover street, South End, offered great possibilities. If we could use that street as a nucleus of a highway that would end at Post Office Square, by cutting through Hollis street and making a clean sweep through to the destination, we would have a traffic artery worth-while."

TUNA, SARDINE PACKING CONCERN IS IN MERGER

Los Angeles, June 8.—A $5,000,000 merger of tuna and sardine packing interests of Southern California to be known as the Van Camp Sea Food Company, Incorporated, has just been made public. Firms included in the merger are Van Camp Sea Food Company, White Star Canning Company, International Packing Corporation, Nielsen & Kittle Canning Company, Ltd., four of the largest fish packing plants of Los Angeles Harbor, and two in San Diego, with several others acquired by association and purchase. This new concern will control 80 per cent. of the Southern California tuna and sardine output. Forecasts estimate more than 1,000,000 cases of each pack for this season. The purpose of the merger is to standardize the packing of tuna and sardines and to reduce overhead costs. Control of the new company is vested in eleven directors. Frank Van Camp is president and manager.

Says the Important Fight of '76 Was at Chelsea Creek

The battles of Bunker Hill, Lexington and Concord were of minor importance to that of Chelsea Creek, declares no less an authority than Judge Samuel R. Cutler of the Chelsea District Court, speaking at the banquet of Company D, 16th Regiment, at City Hall, Revere.

Judge Cutler is a close student of history, and says he has read everything available relative to the Battle of Chelsea Creek, and that it was this battle that destroyed the seacoast base of supplies for the British army besieged in Boston.

GIRL BRIDE GLAD EFFORT TO END LIFE FAILED

Mrs. Helen Vickary, who drank poison in the South Station waiting room Tuesday morning after her husband had abandoned her with her nine-months-old daughter, is recovering at the City Hospital, where she declares "from now on I will live for my baby."

The girl bride says that she regrets her suicide attempt, and that she is glad it failed. Her baby was taken to the hospital, ill, the night two girl and last parents have been not be found, while the youngster is recovering from the minor ailment with which it was afflicted.

A Charlestown citizen has promised Mrs. Vickary a position when she recovers.

AIRMEN GIVEN 11 PAGES OF STATE LAW

Governor Cox today signed a bill to regulate airplanes and aviators. It was one of a score of bills sent through by the Legislature in the hope of reaching prorogation tonight or tomorrow at the latest.

Another bill signed will allow the Supreme and Superior Courts to move up important cases for speedy trials. This bill will hasten the final payments to the thousands of depositors whose money has been tied up in the closed trust companies.

The airplane bill says that no plane or flyer shall fly unless both are licensed. The State registrar of motor vehicles will appoint a board of three to examine the aviators. They will also designate official landing places. The bill contains eleven pages of regulations.

Other bills before the Governor include these:

That no person shall set a brush fire between March and December without approval of the fire officials.

For appointment of two additional Justices of the Superior Court and to establish Courts of Appeals to which dissatisfied litigants can take their cases without going to the Superior Court.

To authorize the State to ask for competitive bids for the $600,000 of State printing done every year.

To investigate the prices and quality of gasoline.

To give preference in contracts for public works to citizens.

The House today refused to admit Mayor Curley's bill which would allow Boston and Cambridge to spend $4,000,000 for a new bridge over the Charles River.

It passed a bill to direct the State Department of Health to investigate the county tuberculosis hospitals.

The House rejected the bill of Representative Paul Hines to have the State give 200 acres of land in the Blue Hills Reservation to the government for the new veteran's hospital. It also refused to indorse the site of Northampton, where the Federal government proposes to build the hospital.

The bill to investigate the advisability of passing laws to compel and to allow women to serve on juries was rejected.

WORCESTER AUTO HITS POLE; FIVE INJURED

Worcester, June 8.—Five persons were injured when an automobile crashed into an electric light pole at Belmont and Plantation streets.

The injured are: Maurice Barsky, Mrs. Barsky, Lillian Barsky, age twelve; Olive Wright, nine years old; Esther Anderson, ten. All received many cuts and bruises about the head, face and body. Lillian Barsky is in a critical condition.

Barsky, a wealthy leather merchant, was driving. As he attempted to pass another auto his machine swerved and struck the pole.

SHOOTS GIRL AND SELF IN HOTEL ROOM

Atlantic City, N. J., June 8.—Miss Lois Gibson, twenty years old, is dying in the City Hospital, after being shot today in a hotel room by Benjamin Ball, thirty-two, who turned the pistol on himself. He is also in the hospital but will recover.

No motive for the shooting has been learned. The girl, who was semi-conscious when found, declared that Ball shot her without warning. They had not quarreled, she said, according to the police.

Teamster's Life Saved

Writes Letter That Is Worth Reading Very Carefully.

Peterson Ointment Co., Inc., Buffalo, N. Y.: "I was afflicted with a terrible sores on my leg for years. I am a teamster, I tried all medicines and salves, but without success. I tried doctors, but they failed to cure me. I couldn't sleep for many nights from pain. Doctors said I could not live for more than two years. Finally Peterson's Ointment was recommended to me and by its use the sore was entirely healed. Thankfully yours, William Heane, West Park, Ohio, March 23, 1916, care P. O. Relic, Box 139."

Peterson says, "I am proud of the above letter and have hundreds of others that tell of wonderful cures of Eczema, Pimples and Skin Diseases."

Peterson's Ointment is 35 cents a large box at all druggists, and there isn't a brand-minded druggist in America that won't praise it. Mail orders filled by Peterson Ointment Co., Inc., Buffalo, N. Y.

How to Rid the Arms of Objectionable Hairs

USE DELATONE

(Aids to Beauty)

A simplified method is here given for the quick removal of hairy or fuzzy growths and rarely is more than one treatment required: Mix a stiff paste with some powdered delatone and water, apply to hairy surface and after 2 or 3 minutes rub off, wash the skin and every hair has vanished. This simple treatment cannot cause injury, but care should be exercised to get real delatone.

WILSON NOW HOT ON TRAIL OF LODGE

By WILLIAM HARD.

Copyright, 1922, by Cosmopolitan News Service.

Boston, June 8.—Well, getting right down now to the greatest remaining political personal question in America:

Can Henry Cabot Lodge be defeated?

Herewith the reasons why some people say "Yes":

HAROLD D. WILSON—This man has a perfectly terrible mad on. I am ashamed to begin discussing a sublime political subject like Henry Cabot Lodge by bringing in a booze raid. But Wilson is sublime too. Wilson is one of the greatest law enforcement bloodhounds of our day. He followed the scent of illegal liquor one night to the door of a room in the Quincy House in Boston and leaped into a party of convivial Republican politicians—the politicians were of large size.

Shortly thereafter Mr. Wilson ceased to be chief prohibition enforcement agent in this paris. He ceased by order from Washington. He now is determined to tell the whole State of Massachusetts that Henry Cabot Lodge did it to him and that Henry Cabot Lodge must now forthwith this year be struck down and out by the forces of sobriety, of law and of religion.

He has written a book. He was in the aviation service during the war. He starts his book with pictures of his wife, his two children, and himself. From gazing at his features I can see clearly that he believes in God, in prohibition, and in himself. The title of his book is "Harold D. Wilson on Dry Laws and Wet Politicians."

He is lecturing in churches. He is sober and tireless. There is nothing that he would not do in order to get a United States Senator who would not let him chase bootleggers. He will even himself run independently for the United States Senate in order to take votes away from Henry Cabot Lodge. He would hope to take enough of them away to do some good—or harm—if the race between Lodge and Democratic candidate was at all close.

"Honey Fitz," Mr. Fitzgerald—formerly Mayor of Boston—and Democratic candidate for United States Senator against Mr. Lodge six years ago—tells me that in that election of six years ago a shift of some twenty thousand votes would have elected him and would have defeated Lodge. And he—Fitzgerald—campaigned for only a week or ten days. It would seem to follow either that Fitzgerald is popular, or that Lodge is not, or both.

Fitzgerald this year is going to run for Democratic nomination for Governor. If he gets it, he will be pacemaker for the Democratic candidate for United States Senator.

Having thus made all proper preparations for the entrance of the candidate, I will now introduce him.

SHERMAN WHIPPLE—A lawyer, a great lawyer. None greater in Boston. Born in New Hampshire—like Daniel Webster. Came to Boston with no pull. Practiced in the "Poor Debtors'" Court. Then did accident cases. Then left accident cases and did better cases. Arrived finally—and long ago—at the best cases.

Has had a very large income for many years. A man with a thick jaw and a ruggedly shaped head. In a law case always defends by attacking. If he gets the Democratic nomination he will attack Lodge on Lodge's proudest spot—the four power treaty. Myself, having nothing against Lodge, but everything against the four power treaty, I listened to Whipple on the four power treaty with delight.

Whipple perceives that the worst quality of the four power treaty is that it means an act of base national cowardice. That means that we got so scared by the Anglo-Japanese alliance that we said to the British and the Japanese:

"Come now good lion, good Samurai, let us come on in on your side and be special friends with you instead of with our friends the Chinese and then you wouldn't bite us, would you?"

That is what the treaty means; and Whipple is an eloquent aggressive formidible speaker and if he can really starts attacking Lodge on the four power treaty and on the failure also of our present statesmanship to even try to bring international justice and industrial peace to strike-torn New England, he will make Massachusetts know that Lodge has an opponent.

WILLIAM A. GASTON—Colonel Gaston is also a candidate for the Democratic nomination against Lodge. Gaston's firm worked out the plan which raised the street car fares in Boston to ten cents. The idea that the masses of Massachusetts would rise against Lodge and the codfish and the gold coast under such a candidate is bold—very bold.

But finally:

SAMUEL W. McCALL—Ex-Congressman, ex-Governor, many years of public service. Tall, elderly, gentle mannered, shrewd. As Governor took a great interest in old-age pensions and such things. A Republican friend of the League of Nations. A Republican stern critic of the four-power treaty. May run against Lodge in the senatorial Republican primary.

Conclusion:

The issue in Massachusetts is Lodge plus the four-power treaty. Massachusetts is rich in Democratic voters and in near Democratic voters who are well against the four-power treaty. It is also strangely rich in Republican votes who were wildly in favor of the League of Nations and who viciously detest Lodge for opposing it and who will detest him also for the four-power treaty if they once can be brought to see the fact that th4our-power treaty knocks holes in their dear league throughout the whole Eastern world. Therefore:

The campaign against Lodge, if well managed, has a chance.

Half Million for Glass of Beer! Yes, in Russia

Albany, N. Y., June 8.—Dr. Charles H. Johnson, secretary of the State Board of Charities, who is doing relief work in Russia, paid half a million for a bottle of beer, 70,000for a newspaper and 100,000 for a street car ride—rubles, not dollars—according to a letter received here.

The beer actually cost him about 12 cents, and the other items in proportion, Dr. Johnson explained.

BANKERS GIVE UP GERMAN LOAN PLAN

By the Associated Press.

Paris, June 8.—All idea of an international loan to Germany has been given up by the committee of bankers, and they are meeting today to agree on the form of their report to this effect which will be submitted to the reparations commission.

The prevailing conviction among bankers is that two things are fundamental to a loan: First, that there must be given up by the countries, which were to include all the countries represented on the reparations commission; second, that the credit basis of Germany must be outlined clearly.

The bankers look on the reparations commission's reply to their recent note as an official declaration that unanimity does not exist among the prospective leaders, and, therefore, feel plans for a loan cannot be advised.

SWISS REPORTS TO JOHN D. ON MAX OSER

New York, June 8.—What is believed to be the latest move on the part of Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick to frustrate the projected marriage of her daughter, Mathilde, to the Swiss riding master, Max Oser, in the bringing to this country of Saverio Dati, a Swiss courier, who reached New York today.

Dati, who has been known to the Rockefeller and McCormick families for many years and has been looked on by them as a friend, is believed to have brought a confidential history of Max Oser's career.

Mrs. Dati accompanied her husband. Both went to the home of Mrs. Marcellus Hartley Dodge, who was Geraldine Rockefeller before her marriage. Dati appears to be a man approaching seventy.

Other passengers said the Datis are being brought here to lay information about Oser before John D. Rockefeller.

WADE HEARS OF NICKEL FARES FROM HYLAN

The Boston American today presents the fifth of the remarkable series of interviews with men of national prominence obtained by Horace Wade, world's youngest reporter. Today's interview is with Mayor Hylan of New York.

By HORACE WADE

Eleven-year-old author of "In the Shadow of Great Peril," who writes exclusively for the Boston American.

Copyright, 1922.

New York is certainly a great little village.

Next to the Windy City, I'd pick it out as my residence. I looked about me at the hurrying, scurrying people who rushed every place with little regard for the other fellow and I mentally compared it with Chicago.

And then there were bootblacks, as described by Horatio Alger, who run around like mice, looking for a new customer. And they all seemed happy as larks on a Summer morning, for wide smiles overspread all their faces. And why—'cause they only had to pay a jitney for carfare.

Busses, street cars, subway, elevated—only a nickel. Name anything you want to ride on, then dig for a Buffalo and away you go lickity-split, like a fast express. Some speed and all for a jitney. Can you believe it? Well, I couldn't at first until I was shown. I'm from Missouri and have to be shown before I'll believe a thing.

MEETING THE MAYOR.

I strode for Mayor Hylan's office in the City Hall. I had met him before and he shook my hand with much vigor. Mayor Hylan wore a brown suit with heavy brown stripes in it, brown shoes, a white shirt and a purple necktie. He has a high forehead, a chin that protrudes over so little and shows you some of the bulldog spirit within him. A pair of bluish-gray eyes twinkle forth from behind a pair of glasses, and he has a small up-to-date red mustache. And his hair is also red.

"Well," he said to me, a few minutes after I had quit sizing him up, "Take a seat and tell me why the rush."

"Say," I cried, "Mayor Hylan, I want to know how you got a five-cent fare."

"Well, Horace," he returned, tapping with a pencil on the desk, "we have a five-cent carfare here because we wouldn't allow the transit corporation to raise the price.

"We're still fighting on that issue, but—his chin came forward a trifle more and he clicked his teeth—we'll win—the people and I. The transit corporation and the State transit corporation are struggling now to bring about a condition which will effect the raising of the fare."

"What does New York do for its boys?" I continued, after his outburst was over.

HELPING THE BOYS.

"They give them shower baths right near their homes and the firemen in the nearby firehouses take care of them. We are building a large community bathhouse at Coney Island for both grownups and children. Then we teach them sports—baseball, and all sorts of amusements. We close many streets in the city and place a sign there which reads: "Closed for play purposes." Then there are no places where a child can be run down. New York loves its kiddies and we do our best for them."

"Did you ever start to write a book?" I inquired.

"No," he hesitated, "but if the truth is known, I confess that one day I started to write a love story—this was when I was thirteen. But I only thought about it and let it drop. I've got all over such things now. I'd rather be a politician than an author."

"What books did you read?"

"Horace," he replied, "I liked lots, but the best were among history and books on civil government. I dreamt of being a mayor when I was a boy. I used to read tales of the wild West and how I longed to be a cowboy and kill Indians. But, though I was brave, I had more sense than bravery and stuck at home."

REPUBLICAN CONVENTION IN BOSTON ON SEPT. 23

At the meeting of the Republican State Committee held at Young's Hotel, it was voted to hold the State convention of the organization in Boston on Saturday, September 23. In the apportionment of State delegates it was arranged to have one delegate for the first 125 votes cast for the Republican candidate for Governor in 1920, and one for every additional 250 votes cast, making a total of 2,875 delegates. The committee was enlisted to increase the number of delegates.

WHITE Georgette crepe and white embroidered filet lace come together with inevitable charm in an afternoon costume by Martial et Armand. The cape is a graceful blending of the two tissues, with the Georgette crepe falling in loose plaits at the sides.

LACE panels lengthen the sides of a Summer frock of yellow lace and white mousseline and give it a gossamer fulness. Patou made the bateau-necked lace bodice to open down the side over the mousseline and gave it the custom ary low-placed waistline.

DISCOVERS PREVENTIVE OF ANIMAL RICKETS

Kansas City, June 8.—Discovery of a new food property which promotes bone growth and prevents rickets was announced by Dr. E. V. McCollum of Johns Hopkins University in an address before the 37th annual convention of the Holstein-Friesian Association of America. Frank O. Lowden, former Governor of Illinois, was unanimously elected president of the association.

SENATOR'S WIFE GETS $60 WEEK AS ALIMONY

Providence, June 8.—Mrs. Arthur L. Smith, president of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, and wife of a prominent State senator, who secured a legal separation from him recently on charges of misconduct, was awarded $60 a week alimony and the use of his house at Barrington, R. I., in a decision handed down by the Superior Court. Mrs. A. L. Smith.

Mrs. Smith accused her husband of intimacy with a Pawtucket girl, alleging that he took her to roadhouses and on automobile rides. The awarding of the alimony was delayed pending a court inquiry into Senators Smith's financial status.

Smith has been a member of the Senate for several terms. He is also commodore of the Barrington Yacht Club.

MARINE GUARD AT RUSSELL FUNERAL

Pittsburgh, June 8(By the Associated Press).—Friends from official dom, from the profession which carried her to the height of her operatic glory and from the walks of life into which her various well directed interests carried her in later years, today paid their last respects to Lillian Russell Moore, wife of A. P. Moore, Pittsburgh publisher.

The funeral, at which Pittsburgh friends and admirers from all over the country gathered in farewell tribute, took place in Trinity Episcopal Church.

Silent sentinels, a detachment of United States marines, has stood guard at the death room in the Moore home since their arrival from Washington under orders from Assistant Secretary of the Navy Roosevelt. They are watching over a dead comrade, for such she was by official warrant during the World War, when she held the rating of summary sergeant. And when their vigil has ended they will be the bodyguard on the march to the church and thence to the cemetery.

There the survivors of the 107th Field Artillery will escort the cortege from the gates to the vault where Mrs. Moore's body will find a resting place until a suitable mausolium can be erected. A firing squard from the American Legion, will render the farewell salut.

Although a request that no floral tributes be sent to the home had been made, hundreds of wreaths from persons prominet in official and professional falks of life, fere relsived. One of these was from the White House. This was placed on the foot of the couch on which Mrs. Moore's body lies.

Hundreds of telegrams of condolances were also received.

THOUGHT RADIO APPARATUS A DICTAGRAPH

Mrs. Emma Stapleton, Garrison street, South End, who figured prominently in the news some weeks ago when her husband, Frank J. Stapleton, surprised her in a rooming house with Patrolman Herbert McGettrick, was arraigned in the Municipal Court today charged with destroying property belonging to Dr. H. F. Connors.

She was fined $25, appealed, and was released in $100 bail.

Dr. Connors said that some time ago he installed a radio telephone instrument in his rooms directly beneath those occupied by Mrs. Stapleton. Shortly afterward he discovered that the wires to the roof had been torn down and out.

When he accused Mrs. Stapleton, he testified she admitted having destroyed the wires, saying that she believed them to be a dictagraph installed by her husband to "trap" her.

In court Mrs. Stapleton told Judge Wentworth that she had not thought the wires a dictagraph, but had believed that her husband "had strung them so as to get at my room."

Judge Wentworth found the explanation failed to explain.

Patrolman McGettrick, with whom Mrs. Stapleton was found, later was dismissed from the police force.

He will return to Washington Friday evening.

ACTS TO CHECK BOOST IN COAL PRICES

Charging that the people of Massachusetts are in danger of being "unmercifully exploited" by coal jobbers and speculators who are taking advantage of the coal strike crisis to mulct the public, were today made by Fuel Administrator Eugene G. Hultman in a letter of protest to Secretary of Commerce Hoover.

Hultman said in his letter that the Triston Coal Sales Company of Triston, Pa., has sent a letter to Massachusetts dealers offering chestnut coal at $10 a ton and pea coal at $7.50, at the mines.

"During the Federal Fuel Administration's term," said Hultman, "no independent anthracite operators were allowed a maximum price of 75 cents per ton over the company price and the wholesaler or broker was not permitted to charge more than 20 cents a ton commission.

"The latest quotations on company coal are about $5 for chestnut and $6 for pea size."

Hultman charged that the prices paid by this independent company are in excess of the legal rate during the war high prices, and he questioned the genuineness of their offer to sell "fresh mined coal of standard quality." He declared the selling of good coal has been suspended for a long time.

GERMAN ARMY SECRETS FOR U. S. STAFF

By International News Service.

Washington, June 8.—Military secrets of the German high command during the World War have been bared to officers of the United States army for use in future wars. Representatives of the War Plans Division, American General Staff, are now in Berlin making an exhaustive study of hitherto closely guarded records of the German War Office.

American army officers of the next war will have the benefit of a thorough knowledge of the organization, training and tactics of the Kaiser's armies. The strategy of Ludendorff and Hindenburg in their desperate campaign to save the Fatherland, it was learned, will probably form the basis of textbooks in the United States Army War College.

Lieutenant-Colonel Walter Krueger of the War Plans Division, U. S. A., is in charge of the work now being carried on in Berlin. Complete reports of his researches among the archives of the German War Office are being forwarded to the War College here, where the material is in process of arrangement for presentation in various courses of instruction provided for high ranking officers of the American army.

The subject matter of these reports first will be presented to American officers in the form of lectures. Later these lectures probably will be produced in bookform, with explanatories by American military experts upon the manner in which their lessons may be applied to the American Army.

American experts give the Germans credit for many of the most effective contributions to tactics which the war developed. These include the so-called "defense in depth," which was first made known to the allies when it broke through the German lines at Neufchatel, only to find other lines of defense fully organized out of reach of their artillery fire.

PLANES FIGHT FOREST FIRES NEAR QUEBEC

Quebec, June 8.—Three hundred men, directed by airplanes, today fought three large forest fires at St. Michel Des Saints, Berthier County, in the vicinity of Lac Chair, Lac Chienne, and the headwaters of the Vermillion River. The Provincial government yesterday passed an emergency order closing the forests of the province to everyone not holding a permit.

POPE LISTENS TO ADDRESSES IN 27 TONGUES

Rome, June 8. (By the Associated Press).—Pope Pius appeared today in the courtyard of San Daniso in the Vatican before an assemblage of 5,000 persons, including the students of the College of Propaganda and Missionaries celebrating the third century of the foundation of the Congregation of Propaganda.

The Pontiff, who appeared to be in the best of health, ascended to a platform decorated with the Papal colors, on which was placed the throne. He listened for more than two hours to addresses delivered by the students, in twenty-seven languages.

The Pontiff understood most of the languages and took a keen interest in each address, complimenting the speakers and Monsignor Globbe, the rector of the college.

At the close Pope Pius delivered a short address, reiterating the necessity of strengthening the work of the missionaries throughout the world for the advantage of both religion and civilization.

Despite the heat of the day, the thermometer registering ninety-one in the shade, Pope Pius imparted the apostolic benediction in a vigorous manner, his face, ruddy and robust, beaming with satisfaction at the imposing gathering kneeling before him.

When the Pontiff left he was given a hearty ovation, with hurrahs in more than a score of languages from the representatives of the five continents of the globe.

Although in good physical condition, Pope Pius complains that exercise in the Vatican gardens lacks the vigor which he had been accustomed.

TEARLE, MOVIE ACTOR ASKS ALIMONY HOLIDAY

New York, June 8. — Conway Tearle, movie actor, thinks the alimony he is paying one of his former wives, Mrs. Josephine Park Tearle, should be cut during the Summer.

Conway Tearle

His attorneys asked Justice Marsh to slash the weekly payments during the warm months as he does not work before the camera.

Mrs. Tearle contends it costs her just as much to live in the Summer as it does in the Winter.

Tearle's lawyers argue the actor has to maintain a suitable establishment for his present wife, Adele Rowland, and that this should be taken into consideration.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON BOSTON SOCIETY

Return of Bryce Allans May Revive the Assemblies

By BETTY ALDEN

THERE are probably few matrons of Boston's fashionable coterie who are more wholeheartedly disliked by Mrs. Sosbail Klymer than Mrs. Bryce J. Allan.

The above-mentioned animosity is very easily accounted for, for Mrs. Allan was one of the tiny group of matrons upon whose judgment rested the making up of the invitation list for the Assemblies. The exclusiveness of these dances needs no introduction here. Everyone must know that a "bid" to the Assemblies was as good as the golden key to Boston's innermost social circles.

When the war came, the Assemblies were given up for the time being, and for various reasons no Assembly has taken place since. But Boston's select coterie is hoping very much indeed that in the near future the kind fates will see fit to arrange things so that the 400 may once more pay homage at the shrine of terpsichore under the "social climber-proof" wings of the Assemblies.

The news that the Bryce Allans are expected to arrive from abroad late in the season at "Allanbank," their Summer estate at Beverly Cove, is naturally of widespread interest. I expect that there will be no end of entertaining in honor of their arrival at the Shore, for the Allans, who spent the Winter in France at Cannes and are now in London, have been passing very little of their time in recent years in the land of the Stars and Stripes.

If the Allans decide to spend next Winter in Boston—they have a home at No. 255 Beacon street—there is just a possibility, of course, that the beloved Assemblies may be revived, and with them, a perceptible tightening of the lines which divide the various cliques.

THIS month a year ago the North Shore saw one of its smartest nuptial events. It was the marriage of Clarissa Curtis, daughter of the Thomas Pelham Curtis', and young Prince Michael Cantacuzene, the ceremony taking place at the historic little church at Nahant.

The elder Prince Michael and Princess Cantacuzene (Julia Dent Grant) came on to Boston for the all-important occasion, and the young Princess Bertha Cantacuzene was one of the bridesmaids for her sister-in-law to be. There was, of course, entertaining galore along the Shore at that time, when Boston society folk had ample opportunity to meet Cantacuzene family, and ever since that time the smart set here has been following with quickened interest the comings and going of the Russian nobleman and his family.

The elder Prince and Princess Cantacuzene with their two daughters, the Princesses Bertha and Ida Cantacuzene, have left Washington for the Catskills to remain for the Summer.

It is probable that their son, Prince Michael, and his bride, who have been spending the Winter in New York, will spend some time with the former's parents in the Catskills during the hot months. I understand that the former Clarissa Curtis will visit her parents for a while this Summer at the cottage in Nahant, where the wedding reception following her marriage last June took place.

APROPOS of the North Shore —by far one of the most attractive of the younger matrons Summering there is Mrs. Nathaniel Simpkins, Jr. (Olivia Thorndike), who is spending the season at Beverly Farms with her little son.

Mrs. Simpkins is strikingly beautiful, with her vivid coloring and coal black hair. She is one of the most regular attendants at St. John's Episcopal Church at the Farms, at whose altar most of the fashionable ceremonials of the Summer are solemnized. At the service last Sunday the former Olivia Thorndike was effectively gowned in a black silk tricolette dress. A broad black hat completed the costume.

It was about four years ago that Hub society folk learned of the tragic death of popular young "Nat" Simpkins, Jr., who served on Major General Edwards' staff as aide until his death at Souilly, near Verdun, in October of 1918.

GERMAN NOTE ON WAR CLAIMS "GRATIFYING"

Washington, June 8. (By International News Service).—"A most gratifying" note has been received from the German government concerning the appointment of a mixed commission to adjust the differences between the United States and Germany in private war claims, the State Department announced today. Germany not only accepted the American proposition that each government should appoint one member of such a commission, but has gone even further and suggested that the third member of the commission who would be an umpire also be an American.

DISABLED VETERANS DISPLAY HANDIWORK

The ingenuity and mechanical skill of the disabled veterans in hospitals in the First Corps area are exhibited in the display being made of their wares in the Disabled Veteran Service store, No. 441 Boylston street.

Mrs. Clarence R. Edwards, wife of General Edwards, is spending most of her time and energy in making these boys happy in the hospitals by selling what they can make.

GRAIN DEALER HIT BY TAXICAB

James Daggett, No. 540 Commonwealth avenue, a grain dealer, was severely injured as the result of being run down by a taxicab on Commonwealth avenue at the junction of Beacon street today.

Otto W. Torrrose, No. 27 Arnold street, driver of the taxi, was held blameless by the police, who said the accident was due to Mr. Daggett's indecision in crossing the street, Torrose having made a full stop to give him a chance to cross. Daggett was taken to the City Hospital, where it was found he had a fractured left leg and numerous bruises.

FINISHING TABLET TO CHAPLAINS

A bronze tablet to commemorate the service of the Bay State chaplains who gave their lives to the service of humanity in the war was today being completed to be placed in the new Hall of Fame at the State House.

The memorial to the chaplains is being made by Bashka Paeff, the Boston artist. It represents a dying Massachusetts soldier, who has been tenderly carried by two chaplains to the protection of a shell-hole. There they administer to him while his life ebbs.

ANOTHER WAGE SLASH COMING TO R. R. MEN

Chicago, June 8 (By International News Service).—Another slash in the pay of railroad employes was imminent today. Members of the United States Railroad Labor Board went into executive session to consider a reduction in the salaries of all the railway clerical forces.

It was reported that the cut would be the largest yet made, exceeding even the $100,000,000 annual slash made from the wages of 1,000,000 other railroad men, made in two recent decisions.

The forthcoming decision of the board will affect all the members of the International Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks.

Just how officials of the clerical union will take the cut, should it come, is problematical. The railroad workers are now actively balloting on the question of strike and the ballots are returnable June 30.

One Parting Kiss for Fiance as Mary Flits Again

By International News Service.

Paris, June 8.—Allowing her fiance, Allister McCormick, young Chicago millionaire, but one good-by kiss, Miss Mary Landon Baker departed for London today. She was accompanied by her mother.

Mr. McCormick, in true sweetheart fashion, remained on the train bidding an affectionate farewell until it began to leave the station.

"She is gone, and I won't see her for a week," McCormick murmured to a friend, while tears filled his eyes.

CHARGE DENTIST ATTACKED GIRL; ASK $50,000

That he viciously attacked a seventeen-year-old girl who went to his office as a patient, is charged against Dr. Nicholas Perri, a Dorchester dentist, in a suit for $50,000 filed today.

Elvira Cincotta of Medford brought the suit through her father, Andelino. Papers allege the girl was attacked January 19, 1921, at Perri's office, where she went to have her teeth treated.

It is said that after the attack the dentist promised to marry the girl, but had failed to keep his promise.

Vose Player Piano

THE simple phrase—"It does not sound like other players"—probably best expresses the reason for its standing with those who know player values. It does not sound like other players because it has the beautiful Vose tone with no suggestion of the mechanical to mar it.

FREES GOLFERS; NO "GAME" ON SUNDAY

With a bow to Chauncey Depew, court sat today in the East Boston courthouse on that thrilling question of the day: "When is a game of golf not a game of golf?"

After two hours of vivid forensics, pro and amateur, it was found that the answer is: "Maybe, providing."

C. Vernon Browne and William W. Partridge of Winthrop, who inflicted upon themselves a martyrdom that should rank them niches in the nineteenth hole of the golf hall of fame, were declared not guilty of a violation of the Sunday sports law by Judge Joseph H. Barnes.

The momentous acquittal was hailed with cheers from mashie lizards and niblick hounds, who gathered to sustain the courageous Browne and Partridge. These two gentlemen, having gone over the nine hole court golf course at Cliff House, Winthrop Highlands, last Sunday, gave themselves up voluntarily to Chief of Police McNeil.

The fact Lieutenant Douglas of the Winthrop Police force was watching the game may have had something to do with the self imposed martyrdom.

CUSHLI'S WEBSTER.

In the absence of a decision of the Supreme Court of the United States, Judge Barnes consulted Webster, and found that he defined a game as "anything played in competition and by rules."

Court golf, you understand, is played only with a putter, over nine holes.

Judge Barnes, looking severely at Browne, who is a trustee of the Cliff House, demanded:

"Was there any competition in the affair on Sunday?"

Browne looked at Partridge and sneered.

"I wouldn't call it competition."

The two martyrs were represented by Attorneys Joseph C. Howard and John L. Nol of Boston. The prosecution was in charge of Leon C. Gupstill, town counsel of Winthrop.

Judge Barnes asked Partridge, who is an automobile man, whether, in the half hour that Lieutenant Douglas was an interested spectator he had succeeded in sinking the ball.

"Four times, your honor," was the proud reply.

Douglas interrupted.

"Judge I watched carefully. He didn't sink it once."

This created a mild sensation in court, which was equalled only when Chief of Police McNeil, questioned about his knowledge of golf, said that all he knew about it was that you had to get the ball into the bloomin' hole with three strikes or more.

Summing up, the decision of Judge Barnes seems to be this:

If you can keep the score in your head and play rather haphazard, you may play golf to your heart's content.

GOLFERS NOT GUILTY UNDER SUNDAY LAW

FREED BY EAST BOSTON COURT

William W. Partridge and two women friends leaving Court House. C. Vernon Browne shown in insert. Court ruled there was no "competition" in their golfing on the Sabbath at Winthrop.

ELOPERS WITHOUT LEGS SPEND NIGHT IN PARK

Washington, Ind., June 8.—George Wollett and Edna Dodd, both legless, passed through here on their elopement from Linn, O., bound for Louisiana. They camped in a park all night.

GIRL POISONED BY DRUG COLLAPSES IN STREET

A woman giving her name as Miss Mary Lewis, No. 45 Centre street, Roxbury, who collapsed before a traffic policeman during a theatre jam at Tremont and Boylston streets, is in a critical condition today at the City Hospital. She is suffering from veronal and morphine poisoning, and her continual pleading for more of the drugs indicates that she is an addict. The police say she gave a fictitious name and address. They believe she is a housemaid.

COURT ENJOINS PICKETS IN MANCHESTER

By the Associated Press.

Manchester, N. H., June 8.—A temporary injunction restraining officers and members of Textile Union on strike here since February 13, from picketing or otherwise interfering either with the operation of the Amoskeag Manufacturing Company a mills in this city or with their employes was granted by Judge William H. Sawyer in Superior Court today. Service of the papers started at noon.

The injunction names President Thomas McMahon of the United Textile Workers of America, Vice President James Starr, Sarah Conboy, secretary and treasurer John L. Barry, president of the New Hampshire branch of the American Federation of Labor, and "all officers and members of local textile unions or their affiliated organizations."

This was the outstanding feature in the textile strike situation in New Hampshire. All was quiet when the local mill opened today. In police court a woman, arrested during disorders last night was charged with assault and sentenced to thirty days in the House of Correction. She appealed.

The injunction restrains all persons from "combining and conspiring to interfere with the operation of the plaintiff's business and with its employes or those desiring to become employes."

The injunction specifically restrains "patrolling, parading, picketing or loitering about the mills or the approaches thereto."

The injunction remains in force until the close of the next term of Superior Court early in September.

STATE BOARD CONFERS WITH MANUFACTURERS

The State Board of Conciliation and Arbitration today held their final conference with four representatives of Lawrence textile mills affected by the strike of the textile workers. Those present at the session representing the mills were A. F. Colby, assistant treasurer of the Pacific mills; Ernest N. Hood, treasurer Arcadia and Monomac mills; William T. Bowling, treasurer Pemberton mills and Methuen Company, and Walter C. Ballard, treasurer of the Katama mills.

Alicia Dupont's Wedding Dress to Be Ankle Length

London, June 8.—An ankle-length bridal gown has been chosen by Alicia Dupont for her marriage to Harold Glendinning, the Rhodes scholar at Oxford, who wooed and won her on an Atlantic liner on his first trip to Europe.

The wedding dress is a simple robe of white georgette and lace without a train and with an old lace veil.

Alicia's going away costume will be gray georgette, cut on straight lines, with a cape matching which will be trimmed with a wide cut of swandown. A small gray hat and gray shoes will complete the costume.

ATTACK VICTIM HELD AS DRUNK

Martin Haun, thirty-one years old, a Charlestown business man, found unconscious at Broadway and Adams street, Somerville, apparently suffering from the effects of a beating, was arraigned for drunkenness in Somerville Court today. After pleading guilty his case was placed on file by Judge Stuttevant.

At the time he was found lying in the street unconscious and later at the Somerville police station a report was current that the men who had been with Haun had been Charlestown police officers.

Captain Michael J. Goff of the Charlestown force today interviewed Haun at the Somerville Court rooms. He confirmed this report. Haun denied it emphatically, and he also denied that he had been beaten yesterday, and insisted that his black eyes and cut face were of several days standing.

LEAGUE SCORES RACE LINE AT HARVARD

The National Equal Rights League has started action against race discrimination at Harvard University.

The executive committee of the league has passed the following resolutions: "Whereas, there has now appeared in public print a purported statement by President Lowell indicating that the color line is drawn for the freshman dormitories. Therefore, be it resolved that the National Equal Rights League, Greater Boston branch, appoint a committee to protest to the president and overseers of Harvard College this discrimination against colored freshmen and seek elimination of discrimination against all races and colors in Harvard University."

This action follows a protest by the Nile Club, represented by Julian D. Rainey, an attorney.

The Nile Club is composed of the forty colored students at Harvard and they, with Attorney Rainey, assert that the color line fight was started about a year ago in the freshmen dormitories.

Attorney Rainey claims that the race discrimination, especially against the colored men, is the result of Ku Klux Klan activities which started about a year ago, and he claims that the South has great influence in Harvard affairs at the present time.

DOUBLE WEDDING IN SOMERVILLE CHURCH

More than 500 guests thronged Park Avenue M. E. Church, West Somerville, when a double wedding was solemnized. All four principals were graduates of the Somerville High School and two were brother and sister. Miss Miriam L. Cook became the bride of James E. Sawyer and Miss Elizabeth Creighton of Watertown was married to Lawrence H. Cook of Somerville. Rev. George E. Heath, assisted by Rev. L. J. Radcliffe, performed the ceremony.

"Only a bowl of Bread-and-Milk"—

Do you say? Yet it has the power to raise babies to strong men and keep old men young

No one questions the value of Bread-and-Milk for babies, but how few stop to consider that it's just as good for older folks of every age.

The same energy-value that encourages Bobbie to take his first step, keeps Mother young and radiant, Father fit and keen in his middle forties and Grandma hale and hearty at eighty-six.

Bread-and-Milk are Family Food. Together they contain every element needed for your health—proteins for repair, carbohydrates for heat and energy, and a big proportion of the precious vitamines that build vitality and serve as protection against disease.

Eat Bread-and-Milk! Make a complete meal of it at least once each day. You will not only cut down on your table costs, but build up a fund of health beyond price.

FIND BONES OF ANOTHER HERO OF REVOLUTION

The remains of another Revolutionary War hero were dug up today by workmen excavating a cellar at Channing and Mt. Auburn streets, Cambridge.

The second skeleton was found as representatives of the D. A. R., the S. A. R. and other patriotic and civic organizations of Cambridge were conferring upon ways and means to provide a fitting burial for the first skeleton dug up. It is expected that the bones of other soldiers of the Revolution may be disinterred.

It is believed the skeletons are those of Revolutionary officers. It is pointed out in substantiation of the theory that the spot where the bones were found was formerly the site of a hospital for wounded officers of the Continental Army. Later it belonged to the James Russell Lowell estate.

HELD UP BY RED TAPE.

When the representatives of the various interested societies went to Cambridge city officials to make their plans for the reinterment of the bones, they ran right into a barrier of red tape.

The law provides that the skeletons, immediately after discovery, should be turned over to Medical Examiner David C. Dow. That law was complied with.

Another law, however, says the medical examiner must hold the bones for forty-eight hours. He is then compelled to turn them over to the Health Department, which in turn is supposed to deliver them intact to the Overseers of the Poor, who are supposed to bury them in the pauper's field.

Mrs. Jessie W. Brooks, who first learned of the discovery of skeleton No. 1 and carried the news to D. A. R. headquarters, is authority for the statement that some years ago a similar skeleton was found in the same locality, and at the request of the women's patriotic societies the city buried the bones with military honors, a monument and a marker.

D. A. R. WILL DO HONORS.

The bones in dispute are neither very many nor very bulky. Dr. Dow says there is a bullet hole in the skull of the first skeleton and that so far as he can judge have been in the ground at least 150 years.

Mrs. Ethel T. Whittemore, regent of the Hannah Winthrop Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, declares she is sure the patriotic societies will see to it that the bones are properly buried and the grave appropriately marked. The Sons of the American Revolution and the Cambridge Historical Society have been asked to co-operate with the ladies.

The cellar in which the bones were discovered belongs to Mr. and Mrs. Daniel B. Doherty of Larch road, Cambridge. Mrs. Doherty has given her consent to the burial of the bones by the D. A. R.

HARVARD STUDENTS ARE VICTIMS OF "KLEAGLE"

The Kleagle Kleaned up! That is the doleful cry of many Harvard undergrads who paid $10 each to an unknown "Kleagle" to join the Ku Klux Klan. According to the victims, after payment they were told they must be forty years old to be admitted. Most of them were only half that, so now they can't wear white nighties and do any Kluxing. The Kleagle has disappeared.

MOSCOW OPERA STARS TURN TO AMERICA

Moscow, June 8—As Moscow's opera and dramatic season approaches its close, scores of Russia's best artists are turning their eyes toward America. If the American Soviet Department consents Miss Nezvalova, premier soprano of Russia; M. Sobinoff, Russia's most noted tenor, and several others of the Moscow Grand Opera may appear in New York this Fall.

LURE OF GIRL GETS SLAYER JAILED AGAIN

Concord, N. H., June 8—Disregarding the instructions of the county authorities to leave town after a manslaughter charge against him had been not pressed Charles W. Colby Jr., young Lawrence mechanic, who shot and killed Oliver Blanchette last month, has been arrested on a charge of being disorderly

Colby blew Blanchette's head off with a shot gun at Hennikee, near here when the latter tried to attack the young Lawrence man and Mrs. Bertha Bennett, his former sweetheart, and her young son

Shortly after the shooting Colby returned to Lawrence where his parents and his wife from whom he is separated live. Later he returned to Hennikee where the shooting occurred, and, it is said, became attentive to another young woman. This is said to have enraged the Bennett woman and there was considerable disturbance. Complaints were made to the county authorities, and County Solicitor Herbert W. Ramey swore out a warrant against Colby. Sheriff George Wooster arrested him, and he will be given a hearing before Judge Henry J. Brown

MATZENAUER'S HUSBAND FRACTURES MAN'S JAW

Carmel, Cal., June 8 Floyd Glotzbach, chauffeur husband of Madame Margarete Matzenauer operatic prima donna, packs a powerful wallop. It was learned when he was arrested here today.

The arrest followed a fist fight with Peter Hannah, son of a wealthy San Francisco family at the home of Mrs. Hattie Frankes. Glotzbach was released on bail of $250. Hannah is in a hospital, his jaw fractured. Mme. Matzenauer is suing for divorce. Her suit, however, has nothing to do with the haymaking quantities of Mr. Glotzbach's blows

ASSERTS FEW COLLEGE MEN BECOME CRIMINALS

Springfield, Vt., June 8—Very few college graduates get into the criminal class, President A. R. Brubacher of the State Teachers' College, Albany, N. Y., told members of the State Federation of Women's Clubs at their annual convention. Robert Frost was selected poet laureate of Vermont

5-CENT FARE UP TO UTILITIES BOARD

The Massachusetts House of Representatives today refused to admit a petition for five-cent fares on the Boston Elevated for Boston children during the hot weather, in that poor city children may get into the country.

The whole matter of the 5-cent fare today was buried into the lap of the State Department of Public Utilities

Having thrown all the 5-cent fare bills out the window, the House today passed the resolve for an investigation by the Department and sent the bill over to the Senate for concurrent action

The ways have been greased for quick action. Plans to refer the matter to an investigation had been made even before the vote to kill the bills had been cast

The Senate will pass the investigation order before it closes its work for the day. Governor Cox will sign it

The investigation can be made to amount to something if the people will keep up the interest with which they signed the Boston American petition

REPORT NEXT SESSION.

Were it not for this petition and for the campaign made by Mayor Curley and others the Legislature would have forgotten the entire matter and gone home

The department will have to hold public hearings. The people will have a full chance to insist again that the fares be reduced. The department will make its report to the next session of the Legislature.

The resolve directs the Department to investigate the means of providing better service between Boston and the communities to the north, better facilities for Wollaston, and Hyde Park and the extension of the Dorchester tunnel to run the Elevated cars over the Old Colony and Shawmut branches of the New Haven Road to Wellington avenue, there to connect with surface cars for Mattapan and Milton

All the important bills were rejected by the House in the face of a second warning by Representative Edward F. Harrington that no member who serves his constituents in any of the communities in which the Elevated is located, could honestly go before his people at the Fall elections and expect to survive their disgust

The vote on the three important bills was close, almost on even party lines, the Democrats voting for submission the Republicans against it. Fifty-three votes was the highest number polled by the advocates of the bills. The anti-five-cent faction reached a total of 141. The main arguments against the bills were that they were introduced too late in the session

The final argument Representative John W. McCormack of Boston replied that the members were elected to stay in their seats until their work was honestly and completely done. He said the bills could not have been introduced until the opinion was received from Attorney-General J. Weston Allen that the public-control act could not be repealed

McCORMACK'S PLEA.

"The utterances of all public officials," said McCormack, "have been in favor of reducing the fares. Let your service be more than lip service. They all have agreed that certain burdens should be lifted from the backs of the carriers

"You can remit the subway rentals, the excess tax and the other burdens that are unjustly placed upon the carrier and thereby can reduce the fare in answer to the great public demand."

Representative Arthur K. Reading of Cambridge said that Mayor Curley was simply playing politics. "He made a pre-election pledge that he knew he would be unable to fulfill and I hope his proposition will be kicked out the window," said Reading

"It is true that Mayor Curley made that campaign," said Representative William H. Hearn of East Boston, "and he was elected on that issue. His election shows the people are dissatisfied with the fares

"If these bills are kicked out, the people will believe that some influence unknown to them was responsible. The bills should be admitted for consideration. Free discussion should not be blocked"

Representative Roland D. Sawyer of Ware, the only clergyman member of the Legislature, said the value of the Elevated property is being increased by the people and that the demand for public ownership ought to be pushed at once. "Detroit," he said "has a splendidly equipped railway under public ownership, working for the interest of the people twenty-four hours a day

"You must not forget that 140,000 people signed the Boston American petition for reduced fares. A former Governor and a former mayor of Boston were today before our committee on rules. You can't afford to refuse time for the discussion of this great principle."

CRAVEN WEDDING FIRST BIG NEWPORT EVENT

DEAF BOY'S HIKE TO HOLLYWOOD WAS IN VAIN

For an example of pluck and perseverance meet Warren Stanley Inman, twenty years old, of Bangor, Me

Young Inman has been deaf and dumb fourteen years. Today he arrived in Boston after walking all the way from Bangor to Hollywood, Cal., and back

Inman wanted a job in the movies. So he started for Hollywood last September. He stopped while in Philadelphia, where he worked as instructor in a deaf and dumb school. This paid part of his expenses en route.

It took him nearly four months to reach the coast. When he got there he found that, because of his affliction, he could not obtain work.

Miss Mary Miles Minter, he said, took him to her director and interceded in his favor, but in v.

Inman had some thrilling experiences on the way. In Marlin, Tex., as he fell through a railroad bridge and was forced to swim the Brazos river. Another time he was struck by a freight train and spent ten days in a hospital.

He intends to call on Mayor Curley before leaving Boston.

MABEL NORMAND ASKS PUBLIC FOR SQUARE DEAL

Chicago, June 8.—Mabel Normand wants a square deal. The screen star, whose name figures in connection with the murder of William Desmond Taylor, calls on the public to withhold judgment on her and others named in connection with Hollywood's scandals.

"I have never made a statement and have no trouble at Hollywood," she said, "but I do want to appeal to the public—once upon a time I called them 'my public'—to give me a square deal. They were very kind to me once, when I was working hard to achieve something worth while. And, then, just as my biggest picture was released the tragedy came, the newspapers were filled with stories about us out there—and the public believed them."

RADIO COMES TO AID OF DOCTORS

Radio is such a craze now that fans demand a concert even when they visit the doctor.

The best-equipped doctor's offices now have a radio set in the anteroom, so that patients while they are waiting may listen-in to their favorite station. It is said to be much better than the two-year-old comic magazine and the dusty copy of Caine's Diseases of the Nervous System, that used to be the only diversion of a doctor's waiting room.

But now they go one step further, and up-to-date patients are demanding music with their treatment.

So now when Miss Dorothy Lord, of Medford, goes to see Dr. Christopher D. Thore to get her bones twisted around into their proper places, she makes "doc" trot out the little old set and tune her up.

From the smile on Miss Lord's face it's easy to guess she likes what's coming through the ether, or else the treatment is darned pleasant.

Question Box for Radio Fans

Send in your radio difficulties. Address: Radio Editor, Boston American, No 80 Summer street, Boston, Mass.

T. J. F., Somerville—The best antenna for receiving sets is a single wire, from 80 to 150 feet long, stretched as high as possible above the ground. The other types of aerials which you mention are used more for transmitting, or for directional receiving.

C. N. D., Willimantic, Ct.—A galena detector is simply a crystal detector by another name. The hook up is just the same as with any other crystal, and the range averages the same.

M. R., Boston—A copy of the code used in radio may be obtained from the public library or from the office of the radio inspector in the Custom House. The best way to learn the code is to call a dot "dit" and a dash "dah." Do not try to learn the alphabet by memorizing simply dots and dashes, but endeavor to distinguish the letters by the sound, so that "dit-dah" tells you "A" at once, and "dah-dit-dit-dit" tells you "B." In this way the code is not difficult to learn, and with the proper set you will be able to listen and understand the trans-Atlantic messages.

Radio transmission does vary considerably because of weather conditions, but the reason for this is rather obscure.

A. B. North Woburn—Your hook up for a V. T. set is correct. It is non-regenerative, which is better for the nearby stations. You can increase its range by inserting a variometer in the grid circuit.

SKJELLERUP COMET AND GRIGGS PROBABLY ONE

Word has reached the Harvard Astronomical Observatory by telegram from Professor A. O. Leuschner of the University of California that two members of his staff, Professors Crawford and Moyer, after computing the orbit of the comet recently reported as newly discovered by the astronomer Skjellerup of Cape Town, South Africa, find it similar to that of Griggs' comet. Professor Leuschner states that the two are probably identical.

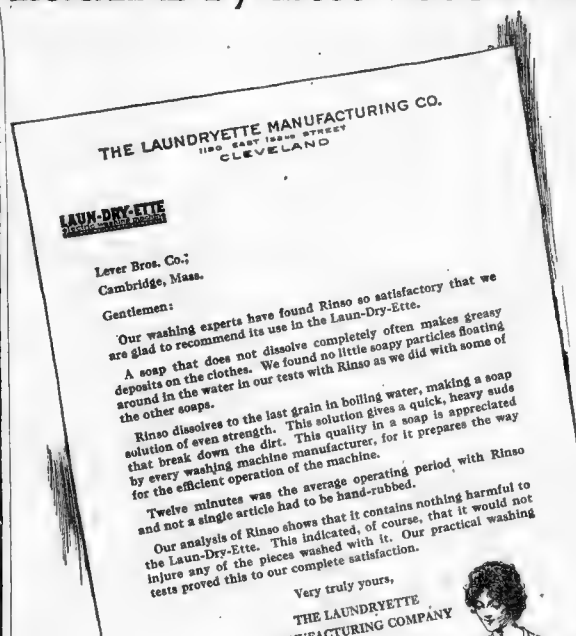
This is No. 3 of a series of Rinso endorsements from the leading washing machine manufacturers of this country

Why the makers of the well-known Laun-Dry-Ette recommend Rinso



THE LAUNDRYETTE MANUFACTURING CO.
1180 EAST 152ND STREET
CLEVELAND
LAUN-DRY-ETTE
Lever Bros. Co.;
Cambridge, Mass.
Gentlemen:
Our washing experts have found Rinso so satisfactory that we are glad to recommend its use in the Laun-Dry-Ette.
A soap that does not dissolve completely often makes greasy deposits on the clothes. We found no little soapy particles floating around in the water in our tests with Rinso as we did with some of the other soaps.
Rinso dissolves to the last grain in boiling water, making a soap solution of even strength. This solution gives a quick, heavy suds that break down the dirt. This quality in a soap is appreciated by every washing machine manufacturer, for it prepares the way for the efficient operation of the machine.
Twelve minutes was the average operating period with Rinso and not a single article had to be hand-rubbed.
Our analysis of Rinso shows that it contains nothing harmful to the Laun-Dry-Ette. This indicated, of course, that it would not injure any of the pieces washed with it. Our practical washing tests proved this to our complete satisfaction.
Very truly yours,
THE LAUNDRYETTE
MANUFACTURING COMPANY
President

LONG before the first Laun-Dry-Ette was put on the market seven years ago the manufacturers of this famous machine started making soap tests.

They knew that their machine could be mechanically perfect—yet not give perfect satisfaction if the wrong kind of soaps were used.

Today after months of searching tests with many soaps they are recommending Rinso in the Laun-Dry-Ette.

Tests made by other great manufacturers

The same exhaustive tests have been made by the leading washing machine makers throughout the country. All are endorsing Rinso without qualification.

Rinso is made of pure cleansing materials so perfectly balanced that it is taking the place of bar soap at every step of the family wash.

When you put your clothes to soak

Dissolve Rinso in boiling water—use enough to get big lasting suds. Then, let your clothes soak an hour or more—overnight if you like—(colored clothes only half an hour). Soaking in big, lasting lukewarm Rinso suds softens the dirt.

In any washing machine

Use enough Rinso solution to make a heavy sud. Operate your machine from 10 to 15 minutes. Rinso is the ideal soap for machine washing.

If you boil

Boiling isn't necessary, but if you like to boil your white cottons, pour enough Rinso solution in the boiler to give you the suds you like.

Rinso is made by the largest soap makers in the world. Sold everywhere. It comes in two sizes—the regular size and the big new package. Get Rinso today—at grocery and department stores. Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Mass.

However your washing is done

The same qualities that make Rinso an ideal soap in any washing machine make it the best soap you can use whatever way you do the family wash.

MOVIE WORLD NEWS AND GOSSIP

By FRIEDA DAVIS

THE bright particular news of the movie world today is the return of Theda Bara to screen land. This is not totally unlooked-for in film circles, since she has threatened to stage a "comeback" for some time. In fact, she has been looking over the situation and spending a lot of time at movie theatres figuring where a heavy vamp fits in with modern stories.

Though Mae Bara started a vogue for vampire roles, the day of the distinct "heavy" is practically over. Modern villainesses "carry on" with a lighter make-up and manner. When the young Fox production of "A Fool There Was" is shown, the woman, played by Estelle Taylor, is almost a burlesque on the old-time vampire.

However, a decision has been reached, and Miss Bara and her husband, Charles Brabin, the director, have signed on the dotted line to make pictures for the Los Ochs Company. They will work separately, not on one picture, as was planned at first. Miss Bara wanted to appear in different roles than formerly, but whether or not she will do so has not been announced.

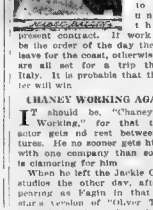
LAST WORD ON VALENTINO

FROM the start of the Valentino affair, Will Hays has been watched by movie fans all over the country, who waited for his decision on the affair. Mr. Hays kept consistently quiet. Now he has made a statement. He claims that the court has rendered the final decision on the case, that Valentino and his bride will live apart for a year before remarrying and that's that.

Will Rogers, who opened as the shining light of the Ziegfeld Follies in New York on Monday night, gives the last twist to the Valentino screw before letting the matter drop for good. "How can a star like Valentino," he asked, "be annoyed with the matter of wives? That is why Will H. Hays has been engaged by the movies, to keep track of the number of wives each star has!"

BALLIN TO TRAVEL

HUGO AND MABEL BALLIN have finished their next production, "Married People," to their satisfaction and that of the producers, the Hodkinson corporation, and are already discussing the chances of a vacation.



The only cloud on the horizon is the question whether or not they will have to start right in on a new film. They have two more to make under their present contract. It work is to be the order of the day they will leave for the coast, otherwise they are all set for a trip through Italy. It is probable that the latter will win

CHANEY WORKING AGAIN.

IT should be, "Chaney Still Working," for that tireless actor gets no rest between pictures. He no sooner gets through with one company than someone is clamoring for him

When he left the Jackie Coogan studios the other day, after appearing as Fagin in that small stark version of "Oliver Twist," he packed up his make up box and hurried out to Universal City to start work on a new starring picture, whose working title is "Bitter Sweet."

ELSIE FERGUSON FOR STAGE

JUST before she sailed for England day before yesterday, Elsie Ferguson signed a contract to appear behind the footlights on Broadway next season in an American version of Bernard Fagan's play, "The Wheel," now playing in London. She will study the play while she is in England and will return in September to start rehearsals

VIRGINIA VALLIE SIGNS

VIRGINIA Vallie left Broadway and the Eastern studios last Fall to appear in the lead of a Bert Lytell feature. She said that nothing could induce her to remain on the coast, however, and that the first train after the film was finished would find her safely ensconced aboard.

That was last Fall. She has flitted from one producing company to another since then almost as fast as has Chaney. Now she has apparently given up all thought of New York. She signed with the Universal Company to play the leading role with Reginald Denny in "The Abysmal Brute." Her husband has joined her in Hollywood, and she already talks about the climate like a permanent resident.

BLACKWELL FOR ENGLAND

NONE other than Carlyle Blackwell set sail for Europe last week and will go direct to England, where he will spend a year as a star of British productions. Nothing definite has been announced about his plans, but he has left the vaudeville stage for good, he claims, and returns to his first love, the screen.

DAILY SHORT STORY

THE CALL OF ROMANCE.

By F. H. Sweet

HE was lolling on the bank, the end of a fishing pole stuck in the mud and its tip upheld by a forked stick, also pushed into the mud close to the water's edge. The young man's gaze went occasionally to the bob floating on the surface of what an experienced fisherman would have known to be a lively pool

The girl above saw and stopped. She had never been in the country before, but the spirit of it was entering into her.

"You've got a bite," she called, excitedly. "Quick! It's so big your pole is being drawn in."

She would have gone headlong into the stream if the young man had not caught her in his arms. But even as his hands touched her he threw her violently behind him, so that she half whirled and then fell prone upon the ground.

Her face flamed into sudden anger at the rough handling. But the hot words on her lips were stayed by his cold actions. He was stamping vigorously on the ground, his face set. Cautiously she drew her foot under her, then rose quickly.

But as she did so she saw, understood, and her face blanched. "Is it a—a— rattlesnake?" she faltered.

"Yes, and the biggest one I ever saw, twelve rattles. But don't be alarmed. It's quite dead now."

Shivering, she seated herself upon the grass near. "I—I'll just sit here a minute or two, if you don't mind," she said.

"Depends on folks," he drawled, regarding her through half-shut eyes.

Two hours later he walked with her to the road. She was very quiet.

"It was wonderful," she said, when they parted. "May I come again? I shall be here two months."

"Any time you like."

"Thank you. My name is Arbuckle—Mary Arbuckle."

"Mine's Ernest Knowles—Lazy No-Earn they have made it here," with a smile. "They work and I don t, which is very bad in so industrious a country."

"What a shame!" indignantly. your way is much nicer than their work. And it gives you such lovely friends, too. And—if you don't mind—you talk so well. Is it from associations with your lit- tle friends?"

"Not quite Just another proof of my lack of industry. A farm was divided amongst all the members of my family and I wanted things different—or thought I did. So I took all mine for a college course Then I found business distasteful, everything distasteful, except river banks and woods and fields. So I came back. I'm just Lazy No-Earn."

"I say you're not," still indignantly, "and my option is as good as theirs."

Two weeks, and then one day, suddenly, "I'm sorry you came, Mary."

"Why!" in startled surprise

"Because I was satisfied before I am not now"

SPRANG TO FEET.

Another two weeks, and then he suddenly sprang to his feet. The woodchuck scuttled away. "I can't stand it any more, Mary. Will you marry me?"

"Why, I—I—of course not," she stammered, taken by surprise. "You don't—you haven't—I—I'll think it over and let you know tomorrow."

But she didn't come back on the morrow, nor for a week. She had been thinking more of her friends than of herself. Then he went to the hotel after her.

"I need you, Mary," he said, unmindful of the people in hearing. "Will you marry me?"

"Yes," equally unconscious. "It's been a dull week. And I—I have enough money."

"I will, too, after this," simply. "I had a letter from my publishers the other day predicting a big sale for my book 'Along the Stream.' And they're asking for another book, that I want you to help me on."

JACK JOHNSON AND WILLS DEMAND GO WITH DEMPSEY

NEGRO FIGHTERS SEEK CHANCE AT TITLE

By JACK CONWAY

Jack Dempsey has withdrawn the color line and announced to the world he is ready to battle Jack Johnson, Harry Wills, Kid Norfolk, Bill Tate or any other heavyweight whom the public demands he battle. "Tiger Jack's" stand on the question of fighting negro ring stars has created new interest in the heavyweight division.

The Boston American has received a letter from a fistic fan which throws new light on the standing of Johnson, Wills, Norfolk and Tate. It follows:

"The Boston American has always been the recognized leader for fair play in sports and everything else. This is why I am writing to you in regard to the peculiar situation in the heavyweight boxing division.

"Jack Dempsey has just returned from Europe and the general public, as well as Dempsey, is all excited because the champion is alleged to be without a suitable opponent. I have just finished reading a news dispatch which says Dempsey has gone to the Pacific Coast as there is nobody in this country to fight him.

"This makes me laugh. How about Jack Johnson or Harry Wills? Then we have Kid Norfolk, light-heavyweight champion of the negro boxers, and Bill Tate, a good trial horse.

Up to Dempsey to Meet Colored Challengers

"Dempsey is a prize fighter regardless of how much he tries to put the social veneer over his profession. He's able to live in luxury because he is able to knock out his opponents. It might be said that Jack is the greatest of the HE brutes.

"As a prize fighter, it is up to Dempsey to meet any man who would have a chance to defeat him. It would be a joke for "Tiger Jack" to battle Georges Carpentier again. The latter is twenty-five pounds lighter than the champion. A Dempsey-Carpentier match in Europe would be merely another repetition of the dismal affair at Jersey City.

"If Dempsey and the Frenchman meet again, the Kearns fighter will win in a round .IF HE WANTS TO.

"Another Dempsey-Brennan fight would also be out of the question. Brennan is as fat as a pig, to use the vernacular, and wouldn't be able to stand up before Jack, let alone fight.

"What other white heavyweights of prominence are there? Fred Fulton is the 'lopping kid. He'd take a dive as soon as Dempsey started one of his punches. Billy Miske is a nifty fighter, but he's too light for Dempsey.

"The rest of the lot are bums; they should be out in the Maine woods chopping down trees.

"Go down the line and back again and two names stand out—Jack Johnson and Harry Wills.

Johnson Would Give Dempsey a Boxing Lesson

"Johnson is an old man, according to the wise guy brigade. True, he's past forty, but he's still good enough to give Dempsey a boxing lesson.

"You may challenge this statement by referring to Willard's so-called victory over Johnson at Havana. This match was a frame-up as everybody knows. Johnson was being hounded all over the world. He couldn't fight in the United States, while he wasn't wanted in France or England. So he went to Havana and sold his title to Willard. He got a high price, but he wasn't treated on a fair level.

"A dub, manufactured fighter like Willard could never beat Jack Johnson. The champion with his golden smile could tie one hand behind his back, toddle into the ring on crutches and still trounce a big tramp like Willard.

"Some people would have you believe Johnson is not in good physical condition. He's taking mighty fine care of himself since his bout with Willard. I saw him when he showed at the Old Howard and he looked the part of the well trained athlete.

Says Johnson Would Win in Jig Time

"Johnson has forgotten more about the fine points of the game than Dempsey knows. The champion wouldn't be able to put a glove on him. And after five or six rounds the sting would depart from the Dempsey wallop and Johnson would win.

"Of course the anvil chorus would oppose the match. So would that gang which has been persecuting Johnson ever since he won the title from Tommy Burns. I don't know why Johnson should receive such harsh treatment As a fighter, he always treated his opponents fairly and gallantly met all-comers.

"If the wise gang doesn't want a Dempsey-Johnson bout on the grounds that Johnson hasn't fought for a long time, why not a Johnson Wills match? The winner could then quarrel with Dempsey.

"It can't be said that Wills is an old man. He's just celebrated his thirtieth birthday, weighs 210 pounds and is six feet two inches tall.

"Wills would defeat Dempsey The latter knows this as he has just refused a tempting offer to battle Harry at Montreal. Jack says he will agree to meet Wills, but that the contest must be staged at Jersey City where no decisions are permitted. Great bravery on Dempsey's part. I'll tell the world.

"Wills has beaten every heavyweight in the world who has had courage enough to enter a ring with him. And he'll dispose of Dempsey if the champion will give him a match for a decision.

"Then don't overlook Kid Norfolk and Bill Tate. They're regular fighters and not fussy about whom they meet.

"If Dempsey wants to be considered a real champion, let him meet either Wills or Johnson and win if he can.

(Signed) "L. S. W."

* * *

Johnson and Wills, it is said, are training. They intend to keep after Dempsey. The suggestion of the writer of the above letter that Johnson and Wills meet and the winner battle Dempsey appears to be a good one. It is said that some of Johnson's friends are planning to go before the Massachusetts Boxing Commission and determine if there would be any objections to a Johnson-Wills match in this city.

There seems to be considerable speculation as to Johnson's true condition. The Boston American has made queries about the former champion's physical condition and will be prepared to make known its findings tomorrow.

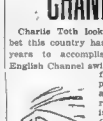
TOTH RIGHT TO SWIM THE CHANNEL

Charlie Toth looks like the best bet this country has had for many years to accomplish the famous English Channel swim. The L. street favorite is in prime condition, as proved by his record-breaking jaunt to the Graves Light yesterday, and Boston swimming fans are confident that he can reach the goal of every long distance natator.



Toth tried the long swim in order to prove that he is going well enough to cross the far-famed stretch of ocean between England and France. His experienced more intense cold than ever before recorded for such a feat, the water ranging from 40 to 47 degrees, so that the Channel holds no terrors for him on that score.

He arrived at the Light just four hours and two and a half minutes after leaving L street. His time at intervening points was as follows:

Head House	11 37
Castle Island	11 55
Spectacle Island	12 28
Deer Island Light	1 10
Graves Light	2 25

His pilots were Gus Wise, Peter Chatalain and Jim Snow. The official timekeeper was Ray Shanahan.

KID NORFOLK TO FIGHT MISKE AT FANEUIL

Boston's first big heavyweight match between men of national fame since the advent of legalized boxing in this State has been announced by the Faneuil A. C. for a week from tonight. Billy Miske of St. Paul and Kid Norfolk will be the giants that will clash. The colored heavy won from Miske in a Boston ring five years ago. Champion Jack Dempsey is the only other fighter that has beaten the St. Paul fighter.

For the past year Miske has been wading through the heavyweight division, winning most of his battles by knockouts. In the past six starts he has won five of them by kayoes. Captain Bob Roper, Charley Weinert, Billy Shade, Jack Renault and Al Roberts were his victims. He also kayoed Farmer Lodge and Cowboy McCarthy.

With close to 200 pounds of weight Miske is fighting better than at any time in his career. Gerly, Tom Gibbons and Brennan refuse to meet him in a decision fight. For eight months the Faneuil A. C. has been endeavoring to match him with a top notcher and finally got Leo Flynn to sign a contract for a match with Norfolk. Big financial inducements tempted Flynn.

If the St. Paul fighter beats Norfolk, he will be in the way of big money matches and further success will put him in line for another fight with the champion.

The Faneuil Club expects a big rush for tickets and they will put them on sale today at their office, No. 39 Court street.

TWO GAMES IN THE TWILIGHT LEAGUE

St. Joseph's Catholic Association baseball team is making a great bid to come out of the second division of the Boston Twilight League and is teamed to battle Jim Flanagan's Maiden Knights of Columbus nine tonight. The Maiden twilight folks, who turn out to Ferryway Green, will see some baseball tussle.

The Somerville youngsters have been underrated of late, but they're playing in last week's two tie score games and holding the North Cambridge Knights 5 to 4 on Monday this week shows just about what they are capable of doing. Their playing of late warns all the other teams to take no chances and at all times play best to win, for if any of the league leaders take a tumble it will be their undoing.

The other attraction for the late afternoon baseball lovers will find the South Boston All-Stars paying a visit to the J. J. Connelly Club of Roxbury. The latter organization have shifted the scene of battle from the Walpole street grounds to Marcella street playgrounds in Roxbury.

The general opinion of the twilight followers is that the change will do the Connelly Club good in more ways than one, as most of those boys are popular at Roxbury.

Both attractions are Class "A" bookings and should play to large crowds.

Sets Polo Record

Philadelphia, June 8.—In scoring seventeen goals in the polo game against the Bryn Mawr Freebooters yesterday, Raymond Belmont, playing at No. 2 for the Fauquier Country Club, of the Plains, Va., hung up a new National Polo Association individual high scoring record, and possibly a world record for tournament play.

GIANTS TRAINER PASSES AWAY HERE

Edward Markell, for years trainer of the New York Giants and probably one of the best known baseball trainers in the country, succumbed to pneumonia at the Hotel Brunswick last night after an illness last ing since the Giants made their appearance here last week.

To the sporting fraternity he was known as plain "Eddie Mark." He was a favorite wherever the Giants made their appearance and has been with the New York club for years.

John J. McGraw, manager of the Giants, took a personal interest in "Eddie" and it was to him that Mrs. Markell turned when death overtook the veteran trainer.

Mrs. Markell always accompanied her husband when he traveled with the club and was at her husband's bedside throughout the illness. Funeral arrangements will not be made until she can get in touch with the Giants' manager.

TEAM BIKE RACE AT WORCESTER

Worcester bike fans will be favored with the first team race of the season tonight at the Worcester Coliseum with a 20-mile race in which the following professionals are paired:

Keller-Hurley, Cavanaugh-Cupit, Cobert Grimm, Spiers-MacDonald, Nelson Walter MacKenzie, Tom and Jimmy Connolly, Sullivan-Drobach, McPartland-Rollins and Barry-Rosenthal.

George Wiley, Jules Miquel and Clarence Carman are the starters in the 26-mile motor-paced race.

Jeff Madden, conveyed by Billy Rolfe waded into the sporting department. Just wanted to let everybody know I'm in Boston and league for a fight," said Madden.

HUTCHISON IS DEFEATED IN TITLE GOLF

London, June 8.—Jock Hutchinson of Chicago no longer is a contestant in the thousand guineas golf tournament at Gleneagles, Scotland The British open champion was eliminated in the first round today by A. G. Havers of Westlanceshire, who defeated the only surviving American 1 up

The result came asa shock to the large gallery of spectators, many of whom had seen Hutchinson win the British title so impressively at St Andrew's last year.

Hutchinson's card follows:

Out	5	5	4	5	4	6	3	4	4—39
In	5	4	4	5	5	5	6	5	5—38—77

Haver's card follows:

Out	4	5	5	5	4	5	4	4	3—39
In	5	3	4	4	4	5	4	4	5—37—76

Another stunning surprise of the first round play was thedownfall of Harry Vardon, several times American and British open champion, by Compston, who did so well in the qualifying roan. Compston won from the veteran 1 up.

In the other matches Joe Kirkwood disposed of Gordon Lockhart, 4 up and 3 to play; Arnaud Massey defeated Tom King, 5 up and 3 to play, and J. H. Taylor downed Jack Rose, 4 and 3.

Abe Mitchell, James Braid and George Gadd also came through.

HARRY RICHMOND WINS IN SENIOR GOLF

By F. G. THAYER.

Harry Richmond, three times champion of the carpet trade golf organization, annexed the first seniors' golf championship at Woodland with a remarkable round of 78. This, coupled with his 86 of Tuesday, gave him the lowest individual gross card in a field of more than one hundred of the best fifty-five-year old-timers.

The best dd not weaken in the end and young spirit of the grandfathers and very few who started failed to return a card. There was a prize for almost everybody, as the committee decided that any contestant could not take more than one prize, even though he might be an actual winner of more.

Richmond played the kind of golf yesterday which wins the prizes as a rule, always straight down the middle with his approach shots up snug to the cup and putts generally sinking, on six of the greens Harry taking but six putts and three putts did he record but once.

At the end of Tuesday's round, Richmond was trailing W. B. Henderson by three strokes but yesterday, the latter, as well as the other likely looking contenders, fell by the wayside and Richmond came flying home life a mad man.

John J. Daniels with two fine rounds of 91 and 82 annexed the $6-hole net trophy with a net card of 141.

The veteran's trophy for the best round on Tuesday for that group of golfers who had reached their seventieth year was awarded to D. T. Kidder of Braeburn with a gross card of 96.

ALL STARS LOSE STAR CATCHER

Joe Murphy, scrappy backstop of the South Boston All Stars baseball team, will be lost to the All Stars and the Boston Twilight League fans for the remainder of the season.

Murphy, who is classed as one of the best semi-pro catchers in New England, met with an accident from a foul tip and smashed the two end fingers on his right hand.

This mishap will handicap the All Stars in their stiff fight to get into the first division of the Boston Twilight League.

George Calza, brilliant Italian heavyweight wrestling champion, will be back in our midst tonight when he battles Hal Christensen, Danish champion, in a finish match at the Grand Opera House under the direction of the Old Howard management.

It will be Calza's first appearance on the mat since his recent illness.

The Italian has married in taking on some tough opposition, as Christensen has beaten Renato Gardini twice, while he also conquered Cyclone Burns

Calza became very bitter against Christensen when informed that the Dane charged he quit out of a match at Newark

"I'll show Christensen whether I'm a quitter or not tonight," said Calza. "I'm glad it's a finish match," continued the Italian, "as I'll now get an opportunity to punish Christensen. I realize he beat Gardini twice, but I'm not Gardini. Christensen will realize this fact tonight."

Orsete Vadalfi, latest Italian meat giant, will oppose Frank Frishcorn, German heavyweight, in another finish match.

Reservations may be secured at the Old Howard.

HALL TWIRLS AND SWATS EVERETT TO TRIUMPH

Everett High easily defeated Malden, 7 to 2, a Suburban League contest at Everett, yesterday. Batting rallies in the fifth and sixth, in which Mayo was driven from the box, were the features.

Oberlander and Hall were the Everett swat leaders, each getting three hits out of four times at bat. Malden scored twice in the first and after that was blanked by Hall, who pitched masterly ball.

WILEY WINNER OF FIRST PLACE AT BEACH TRACK

George Wiley won first place in the 35 miles motor paced race at Revere cycle track last night, in 50 minutes 25 1-5 seconds. It was one of the closest finishes ever seen at the beach bike track.

Wiley beat Miquel the French flyer on the last mile by a bike's length. Leonard was third and Carman of New York was fourth.

In the two mile open amateur race, Leo Maeoli took first place and Bert Barmoy second and John Tallow, third.

ANOTHER CLEANUP IN SIGHT FOR OUR CLIMBING BRAVES

MITCHMEN GO AFTER CARDS ONCE MORE

By NICK FLATLEY.

The Cardinals say good-bye to the Braves this afternoon, and they'll say it with flowers and unction and sincerity and everything else. Their visit has been very pleasant for the Mitchmen and the fans, but has been a horrible nightmare for the St. Louis entry.

Branch Rickey and his gang of pitcher wreckers have now taken seven successive slammings from the Tribe, and are more than ready to cry enough. Will Doak, the star pitcher of the Rickey stable, has been reserved for the parting occasion, but Will will have his trouble if his team can't show a little more stuff than has been evident these past three days.

The Cards haven't been hitting in the pinches, and have been slippery in the field, and the combination has made the Braves look like the greatest team in captivity. Every time the invaders look at the standing of the clubs and then remember what the Mitchells have done to them they shake their heads, and mutter savagely, "How-thehell did it ever happen?"

Played Better Than Two Best (?) Clubs in League

Our surprising athletes have now romped off with six games in a row and have played better baseball and offered far finer pitching than either Giants or Cards, supposed to be the two best clubs in the circuit.

From where we sit it doesn't look as if the Rickey outfit had sufficient speed or pitching power to outlast the champions, but of course you never can tell in baseball. If our Braves could breeze along as they have been going on this home stand they'd have the pennant sewed up in a month or so, and then win the series in four straight, like the 1914 wonders.

Mitchell's Lineup Has Been More Than Steady

The scrambled Mitch-it lineup has been steadier than the ice supply in Baffin's Bay the defense has been impregnable what few times the pinch arrived in the last six contests. Only three Brave errors have been recorded in the winning streak, and not one of them even distantly affected the result. When bobbles meant runs, the other fellows have been making them.

The Braves are now only three and a half games away from the first division, and that's no obstacle at all to overcome in these hectic times. A few more victories will convince the athletes that they can't lose out, and once they get that notion things will be stormy for the rest of the league.

Hesitates at Shifting Team That Has Been Successful

Manager Mitchell has all his regulars ready to go back, but hesitates at shifting a team that has been so successful. His outfield now is entirely substitute, but the regulars never were any more dependable. Injuries gave Mitch a chance to discover that Nixon and Christenbury are mighty good fly chasers, and that Nicholson hasn't lost his batting eye by watching curves from the dugout.

The present surge is a great settlement of the clubs reserve strength and it's that kind of power that hauls a team through the strain and grind of a long, hard campaign. A couple of prominent clubs in the league will be wrecked if certain stars get smashed up, but the Braves apparently don't need to care what happens.

McQuillan Due to Take His Fling at Cardinals

Hughey McQuillan, one of the Big Four that will be worked regularly while the victory habit persists, was due to take the final fling at the Cards. Hughie chucked a swell game against the Giants, but had to retire after a crack on the arm took away his stuff in the eighth inning. The blow caused just a muscle bruise, and all effects have disappeared.

Marquard and Watson are ready to go, but, like the convalescent stars, it looks as if they would have to wait till the present cast got jolted around a bit.

LEWIS BEATS CADDOCK FOR CHAMPIONSHIP

Strangler Lewis, using a powerful armlock, which bordered closely upon his famous illegal strangle-hold, succeeded in retaining the world's heavyweight wrestling championship last night at the Arena when he pinned Earl Caddock twice in a best two-out-of-three match. It was a case of a good big man [illegible] winning over a good little man. It turned to the mat while the crowd [illegible] seconds and [illegible] pass seem possible to refer to [illegible] clock, weighing 190 pounds, but when [illegible] to 2 minutes eight seconds compared with the strangler, weighing more than 225 pounds, he still [illegible] stepping around Bill Brennan [illegible]

The first fall was secured by Lewis after twenty-two minutes and two seconds. Caddock secured a [illegible] foot hold, [illegible] and had Lewis [illegible]

The third and final fall was secured in ten minutes, thirty three seconds by Lewis [illegible] Tom Peasli and lassed Dick Daly [illegible]

HARVARD GIVES LETTER TO McCARTHY

At a meeting of the Harvard Athletic Committee several letters were awarded as were numerous A. I. A. A. A. A. numerals. New track records made this season were accepted and the election of J. W. "Billy" Burke approved. The noteworthy action however was the granting of an "H" to J. A. McCarthy for his work in the Harvard-Yale dual meet at the stadium.

McCarthy, who is a senior this year, has been out on the track every day plugging away to improve his time for the 880 distance, but met with much luck. He earned his way into the Hall of Fame however in the dual meet with Yale when he broke the box that Reynolds and Hilles, of Yale, had formed to hold Billy Burke.

McCarthy's honor came as a result of a recommendation by the Track Advisory Committee and a petition by the fellow members of his track team.

MISS COLLETT IMPRESSES NEW YORK GOLFERS

New York, June 8.—With another important title, the Women's Eastern Golf Association championship—added to her already long list of honors, Miss Glenna Collett, the sensational young Providence, R. I., golfer, loomed today as the most prominent rival of Miss Marion Hollins, champion, and Miss Alexa Stirling, former champion, for national honors this year.

Many experts who witnessed her impressive victory in the Eastern tournament believe she will battle on a par with those two queens of American links in the championship next fall.

Tire Competition — Good, Bad and Indifferent

THE average American was raised on the idea that the more people who competed for his trade the better off he was.

Like many good ideas, it has several sides.

They all show themselves clearly in the tire business.

* * *

There are tires which prefer to compete largely on a price basis. Believing that the public is more interested in the dollars and cents they pay than in the worth of what they get.

On the other hand, U. S. Royal Cords believe differently.

And car-owners who use Royal Cords have a plus feeling which they get both from actual experience, and because they realize the integrity of the manufacturer.

People don't think of Royal Cords as high-priced tires. They think of them as better tires.

In the man who knows what a good, faithful product the Royal Cord is, the tire that makes price its main argument hardly arouses more than a little curiosity.

* * *

So which is better?

A tire that thinks a man has no judgment beyond his pocket-book?

Or a tire like the U. S. Royal Cord—which credits the public with the instinct for quality, and the sense to find out true economy?

Prices on United States Passenger Car Tires and Tubes, effective May 8th, are not subject to war-tax, the war-tax having been included.

The Fleur De Lys

THE use of the fleur de lys as a symbol of royalty in France can be traced to the twelfth century. It is probably not of French origin. It is said to occur in headdresses of Egyptian sphinxes, and was an early ornament of kings.

Souls for Sale

RUPERT HUGHES' GREATEST NOVEL

What Would YOU Do?

IF you were beautiful, young Remember Steddon, a Massachusetts minister's daughter, whose sweetheart died before the wedding, would you try to bring up your baby among those who knew you in your own home town? Or would you run away for a fresh start with new surroundings? If you had your living to make, would you try to get into the movies? Dr. Bretherick, the family physician, advised Remember to go to California. This she did, writing her parents a fictitious tale of having married and lost her "husband." She is thrown in with a movie company, and Tom Holby, leading man, gets her a chance. She makes a hit in a close-up picture. This struggle of a young girl to work out her own salvation is sprlingly told in Rupert Hughes' greatest novel. Go on with the story.

THE sight of his tears sent through her a strange pang of triumphant sympathy, and she broke down sobbing, would have fallen to the sand, if Leva Lemaire had not caught her and drawn her into her arms, kissing her and whispering:

"Wonderful! Wonderful!"

She felt a hand on her arm and was drawn from Leva's arms into a man's. Her shoulders were squeezed hard by big hands and she heard a voice that identified her captor as the director. He was saying:

"God bless you! That was the real stuff! We won't make you do it over. We had two cameras on you. You're all right! You're a good girl! The real thing!"

Then she began to laugh and choke, became an utter fool.

This was her first experience of the passion of mimicry. She was as ashamed as glorified, as drained yet as exultant, as if a god had seized her and embraced her fiercely for a moment, then left her aching, an ember in the ashes.

The director was already calling the mob to the next task. She could not help glancing toward Tom Holby. His camel was moving off with the crowd, but he was turning back to gaze at her. He was nodding his head in approval and he raised his hand in a salute of profound respect.

That afternoon the sandstorm was to be "pulled off." Dynamos mounted on trucks carrying airplane propellers were gathered toward the two great dunes piled to the northeast of Palm Springs, hiding who knows what? under the sands heaped by winds that have roared down San Gorgonio Pass for aeons.

Toward the greater of them, a mass whose color had now the chalky luster of an opal five hundred feet high, a hillock whereon no more vegation grows than on an opal, and wherein the light plays mildly through all the gamut of tinges, the caravan moved. The desert was to represent Sahara in the picture, and these actors and actresses were to convince the throngs that they were really a tribe of misery on whom fate heaped a cyclone of sand to crown their martyrdoms of hunger, thirst and weariness.

As the struggling hirelings of art trudged across the shifty floor of sand, panting between the heat that beat down from the sky and shot up from the glassy meadow, the air stood still and they cooked as in a fire box. Their feet fried and their hearts staggered.

The suffocation sent a few of the crusaders to the ground, gasping like fish in a creel. These were gathered up and carried half dead to the shade, where a physician restored them. They were humiliated and grieved at the treachery of their own faculties.

New Wine of Art.

The others hardly so much marched as tumbled forward. Mem was aided somehow by the ardor of her little success. She felt that if she could only keep to the fore she might be offered another draught of the new wine of art.

By and by she overtook Tom Holby, who checked his camel to have a word with her.

"I'd ask you to take my place up here, but I'm afraid you'd be as sick as I was the first time I rode one of these wallowers. But hang on to that strap and it will help you a little."

Mem seized a pendent strap and was hauled along. She did not know, and Tom Holby did not care, how much this interested the neglected multitude.

After a time, as they slackened their pace to mount the dune in whose soft surface her feet sank above the ankles, Mem noted that the smothering hush of the air was quickened with little agates of wind. Gimlets of sand rose and twisted, ran and fell. A fiendish malice seemed to inspire them and they were vicious as devils at play.

Then the sky ahead was blotted from sight by a vast yellow blanket. It came forward as if giants were carrying it to spread over the terrified pilgrims. Ahead of it darted and swirled spinning devilishes of sand.

The blanket, as it approached became a wall hurrying, a vast dam driven by mountain floods in the rear. The cast of it was a spume of sand. The menace of it was as a Day of Judgment.

Dreadful Omen

The actors had never seen anything of its sort, but they could guess what it was. The camels knew—that it was of dreadful omen.

A few years before, a herd of exotic buffalo up from Texas had been caught in such a sandstorm, and when it passed they were all dead and buried.

The camels began to betray the terror that the people surmised. They grew frantic with pain, but knew that flight was vain. They were at the mercy of whatever god it is that beasts adore. Tom Holby's mount, without waiting for command, dropped to its belly and stretched out its neck and closed its eyes against the peril.

Remember did not know or care that his arm was about her as they peered across the Camel's Back at the onset of the advancing Niagara.

But the camera men set their tripods and began to turn their cranks. They had the instinct of the trade and were hopeful that if they themselves did not live their pictures might.

Tom Holby dropped from his post and gathered Mem into the shelter of the camel's bulk. She did not know or care that his arm was about her as they stood peering across the parapet of the camel's back at the onset of the advancing Niagara. Other women crowded to the same camel. The rest of the crowd flung themselves down and dug their arms to the elbows in the sand lest they be swept away.

A courier gale leaped upon them in a yelling charge, with white of fire and flung the tripods over, and the camera men with them. But they still persisted, and shielding their lenses with their own bodies, turned them this way and that, grinding their cranks and picking up what groups they saw about them.

Torrid Blast

That torrid blast dashed the sand in shovelfuls upon the groveling crowd. The great robes flattered, flapped, bellied, and, ripping loose, went whooping.

The gilding precipice of sand arrived and hid the sun in a gruesome saffron fog. And the precipice was avalanche. With abrupt chill, a brown cold mountain fell upon them, and then the breath, and played shrilpnel on the skin in a mockstorm of dagger points that stabbed from every side.

Tom Holby wrapped his burnous about Mem as they cowered in the lee of his camel. The sand broke over their backs as breakers leap across a rock. They were drowned in waves that did not recede. The sand found them inside their robes; it filled their nostrils their mouths when they gulped for breath. The breakers of sand swept round upon them, broke back over them, and with a grinding scrapper that threatened to split the ears they packed with sand.

Tom Holby kept struggling to fling off the hillock that formed about them, kept lifting Mem's head above the mound that grew. Sagebrushes ripped from their places shot by, tearing the skin they touched. Roots of old mesquite went over like clubs, prickly pears and masses of cactus hurtled past in the tempest.

Suddenly the sand tide was gone. But a sea of rain followed it, cruelly cold and ruthless. It turned the mounds into gobs of wet sand, slimy and odious. What had been a world of drought in frenzy became a lake in a squall. What garments the wind had not wrenched free grew sloppy and icy and loathsomely sticky.

For half an hour the deluge harried the dismal caravan.

Then in an instant the rain was over. The hurricane of sand pursued by flood passed on up the valley, to rend the orange groves and tear the fishing boats from their moorings.

The sun resumed his own tyranny and lashed the thrice-wretched army back to its camp.

But the camera men retrieved their instruments from the rubber covers they had wrapped about them with a mothering devotion, and the director checked the retreat and formed it in groups for record.

The airplane propellers that had come forth to imitate the frenzy of the storm had yielded to it and were torn from their axles, lost here and there beneath the new surface of the blinking opal.

Like Defeated Army

The footsore and saddlesore moving picture people fell back upon Palm Springs like a defeated army.

The village, a cool shadow on a bleak waste, had known nothing of the storm except as a distant spectacle. The skirts of the gale had set the palm trees rattling together as in ancient staff play, and the limber towers of the tallest trees swayed and shuddered, but not one of them had fallen, nor been struck headless by lightning.

The village was alone. The winter visitors had "gone inside"—that is to say, had departed to the cool seashore at San Diego and Los Angeles—and the community had drawn itself together for its long summer nap.

There was room for the moving picture people and Leva Lemaire invited Mem to share her room in one of the hotel bungalows. The sun sank early behind the vast barricade of the San Jacinto chain, rising sheer from the sand and piling height upon height to the crest ten thousand feet in air.

The mountains were blessed now with a mist of light that the aerial prisms gave the effect of down. The brutality of the sky became grace; the stark nakedness of the place was here covered with a flesh of earth, with grass and flowers, and with the larger flowers we call trees. Mem had known the oleander as a tubbed captive at home. Here it was a giant, spreading arms in a benediction of fragrant shade and daunting bouquets that brushed her hair and caught her hat. Palms trees of vast bole hung out umbrellas of sombre green. Wan cottonwoods held up pallid limbs drooping with fuzz. Pepper trees let their tresses droop. The ancient and honorable black fig trees of the famous San Gabriel lineage, date palms, roses, flowers and shrubs massed and running wild about the rambling gardens seemed miraculous to Mem, who had almost forgotten, in the dreary hell of the desert, that green things had ever been invented, and who found herself walking deeper and deeper into a revel of tropical luxury.

Indians and Whites

There were Indians here, too—the little company of Cahuillas, one old buck, with hair as black as tar drip and as long as his hat brim was broad, stood gravely watering hollyhocks with a garden hose; a clump of breed squaws worked at basket weaving; darting through the streets young Indian girls with bobbed hair flopping and gingham skirts flying, bestrode the wide horses of this village.

White people rode, too—cowmen from the ranches beyond and children. One half-naked little girl bounced along the lane on a monstrous horse so flat of back that she might as well have been riding a galloping plateau. Yet she was chasing home a troop of horses a big as her own.

"I was never on a horse," Mem sighed.

"You'd better learn to ride," said Leva Lemaire. "It comes in mighty handy this business."

"But I'm not going into the business!" Mem protested, hereafter able to push one foot ahead of the other. "I've had enough for the rest of my life."

"That's what my poor husband used to say every time he recovered from a spree. And he never had another drop—till he got the first chance."

WHEN A GIRL MARRIES

By ANN LISLE

Copyright, 1922 King Features Syndicate, Inc.

"I HAVE," I replied almost curtly. Then with a shamefaced realization that I'd yielded to a bad case of "nerves," due to the revelations of the morning, I added: "My dear, I'm all to just now. Grwo persons that I trusted have just hurt me frightfully. Your real interest ought to restohe the balance. But it doesn't. Now I'm going to run out and get a soothing buttermilk and then see if I can't meet Miss Storrs sanely without any rough edges."

Whereupon I dashed downstairs, around the corner to the nearest drug store and then to the garage and got out the little blue car Evvry left in my keeping. With this method of rapid transit ready for instant use, I felt armed "cap-a-pie and ready to tilt at whatever dragons Mabel was coming uptown to fight.

When I got back to the office I found Miss May watching for me with a volubility and alertness which fairly hurled me back down the stairs I'd just climbed. Her words pelted after me as I hurried back to the car which I'd taken from the garage to such good purpose.

"Miss Storrs hurt herself frightfully as she was leaving the office. She said to come to her at once. Take a taxi at the corner"——

Dashing down the stairs with a feeling that something was imminent, I leaped into the blue car and started for Jim's office, allowing in my flight just a quarter of a second's margin of safety between myself and the speed laws.

Driving with all the skill at my command, I hadn't much time for introspection or speculation of any sort. The thing to do was to get to Jim's office with all speed, and I proposed to do it.

My astonishment was so extreme as to partake of chagrin when I arrived at the office, hurried to the inner room and found the "frightfully hurt" Mabel Storrs sitting cool and immaculate in the swivel chair, from which she rose to greet me with a placid smile acknowledging nothing of the flurry she'd given me.

"You're all right!" I gasped, as soon as I was capable of speech.

"Perfectly," she continued equably. "Yes—it is queer. But, as you suggested, it proves that I probably never was 'drifting,' even in the days at Tampico. There must have been a design in it all. A design to outwit Dick West.

In my arms I'd fondly hold you,
While I whispered low "I love you so."

GAILY THE TROUBADOUR

Gaily the Troubadour touch'd his guitar,
When he was hastening home from the war;
Singing, "From Palestine, hither I come;
Lady love, lady love, welcome me home."

She for the Troubadour hopelessly wept;
Sadly she thot of him when he slept;
Singing, "In search of thee would I might roam, Troubadour, Troubadour, come to my home."

HINTS FOR THE HOUSEHOLD

Fruit cakes need rather a hot oven just at first in order to set the mixture quickly, otherwise the fruit sinks to the bottom.

* * *

An omelet or a piece of fish, with fruit to follow, is said by one diet expert to be the ideal midday meal for a man or woman employed in an office.

Tinned ware should not be cleaned with sand or bathbrick, or the surface will be damaged. Use soap and hot water, and, when dry, rub with a cloth and whiting.

* * *

To make a delicious dressing for salad add a little currant jelly to equal parts of mayonnaise and sour cream dressing and whip.

* * *

Soles, plaice and all flat fish should be examined on both sides, for it is the dark-skinned side that betrays any lack of freshness. The spots on the plaice should be brilliant red; when they are brown it shows that the fish is stale.

When embroidering make as few knots in the embroidery cotton as possible. Instead run the thread along the material when beginning to use a fresh length of thread.

When cooking greens or cauliflower put a piece of stale bread crust in saucepan, as it will take away all the unpleasant smell. Take the bread out with a spoon before taking up greens.

RICH GIRL, POOR GIRL—A NEW SERIAL

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water

Copyright, 1922, Star Co.

"I AM sorry," Dr. Carter began stiffly, "if I upset any arrangements you had made, Mr. Hollingshead."

But he got no further, for the elderly man interrupted him.

"You upset no arrangements. Dick thought Addie expected him to come for her, but I am glad not to have the lad go out as late at night as this. And it would have been unnecessary for him to go for her anyway. My chauffeur is thoroughly dependable. But I thank you for saving him the trip across town. Stay now and have a smoke with me, won't you? Come in the library for a little chat, my dear, before going upstairs," to the silent girl. "I want to hear how mother is."

"She is better, thank you," Adelaide managed to say. "I think, if you will excuse me, that I will go right up and get off my wraps. Mrs. Hollingshead may be expecting me."

"Yes, if she is awake, she is looking for you," the husband admitted. "But, doctor, you and Dick and I will have a smoke."

Then it was that Richard Hollingshead spoke, gruffly, a frown between his dark brows.

"First of all I will telephone to the garage that the car will not be needed tonight," he remarked. "Had I not supposed that Miss Brown would let me know if she changed her mind, I would not have kept the man waiting all this time."

"I—I—did not understand—I mean— I was not sure that you expected to come for me," Adelaide stammered. "I am sorry if I put you to any inconvenience."

"I do not imagine that the fault is entirely yours," Richard muttered. "Yet—I confess I am disappointed."

He went on to the rear hall where the telephone was. Adelaide hesitated, uncertain what to do. The physician eased the front door by which he had been standing, and came to her side.

"If you are going upstairs," he said loudly enough for Mr. Hollingshead to hear, "I will bid you good-night now."

Adelaide held out her hand to him. "Good-night," she said, "and thank you for driving me home."

Dr. Carter glanced over his shoulder. Henry Hollingshead had gone on into the library. From the rear hall came the sound of Richard's voice calling up the garage at which the Hollingshead car was kept.

The physician spoke in a low tone. "I regret that I focused on your letting me drive you home if you had made other plans. I wish you had told me so frankly."

"But I had made no plans at all," the girl protested. "Mr. Richard told me to let him know if I wanted him—and I did not—at least"——

"There is no reason why you should make any explanation to me. It is your affair, and yours only. Only, as I am a persistent cuss"—with a half smile—"I may have forced my society upon you. If you wanted to come with me, I am glad. If you did not, I regret that I put you in such a position that you could not escape my company. From what young Hollingshead said, I fancied I had butted in, and that he had spoken for the privilege of escorting you home."

"He did—that is—he did after you said you would call for me. I did not tell him that you had offered to bring me over in your car."

"Then you did not decline his offer?"

"Not exactly. You see"—

She stopped abruptly as Richard came into the front hall. He paused when he saw the pair at the foot of the stairs.

"I beg your pardon!" he said, his face clouding. "I did not know I was intruding."

HAVE DARK HAIR AND LOOK YOUNG

Nobody Can Tell When You Darken Gray Hair With Sage and Sulphur

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and attractive with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, all ready to use, at very little cost. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural color and looks glossy, soft and beautiful.

HER AILMENTS ALL GONE NOW

Mrs. Sherman Helped by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Lake, Michigan.—"About one year ago I suffered with irregularities and weakness and at times was obliged to stay off my feet. I doctored with our family physician and he finally said he could not understand my case, so I decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. The first bottle I had taken could see that I was getting better. I took several bottles of the Vegetable Compound and used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash and I am so well cured of my ailments. I may publish this letter if you wish."—Mrs. M. Sherman, Route 2, Lake, Mich.

There is one fact women should consider and that is this. Women suffer from irregularities and various forms of weakness. They try this and that doctor, as well as different medicines. Finally they take Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound, and Mrs. Sherman's experience is simply another case showing its merit.

If your family physician fails to help you and the same old troubles persist, why isn't it reasonable to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound?

FINANCE AND BUSINESS

By B. C. Forbes

No one thing would do more to cheer the business and financial world than an announcement that complete agreement had been reached between the Mexican Minister of Finance, Adolfo de la Huerta, and the representatives of the United States. Assurance that the long delay in the recognition of Mexican government obligations, at their terms of endorsement to New York on Mexico's debt.

* * *

Should a final rupture occur, the effect would be extremely unfortunate. It would be particularly disastrous to the oil industry, which would also ensure a very bad impression in Britain, in France, and other European countries.

* * *

Briefly, the position is this: Mexico said several hundred millions of bonds to American, English, French, German, Dutch, Belgian and other investors, sold them over the counter, and has not paid a dollar of interest on these bonds since 1914.

The holders of these securities claim the Mexican Government's position is now one of three choices: what it was before the outbreak of the World War and that there is no further reason why interest payments should not be resumed.

It is difficult to understand why an amicable agreement cannot be reached on the main question if both sides have been sincere in their announced anxiety to settle the whole matter.

Minister Finance Minister has frankly declared that Mexico is anxious to pay its debts and preserve her standing in the eyes of the world by deeds rather than words.

The representatives of the bondholders have stated that, in order to enable Mexico to do this, they are willing to accept lower interest rates than by not for a moment insisting upon full observance of the bond indenture.

* * *

Therefore, it may be that after some further delay, Mr. de la Huerta and the international committee will get down to serious business and effect a settlement which will enable Mexico to resume payments on her bonds in the sincere belief that they will prove very high-grade investments.

* * *

Should the conference, unhappily, break up in disagreement, Mexico will not be the only sufferer. There may be cruelly and unjustly severe business at the world, while American business at the moment would not suffer through the wrecking of this outstanding expanse of trade from which all calculated would increase enormously in value. The devastation of Mexico's resources would ruin important Southern neighbor. The loss would be important but such aiders, it will be desperate if either does not get on very friendly terms possible to reach an equitable understanding.

Sugars Up on Refinery Price Jumps; "Steel Merger" Stocks Firm; Money 3%

PUNTA ALEGRE AND BEET AT NEW HIGHS

Sugar were the strongest group in today's New York market in last-hour trading, rising on further advances for the raw and refined products. Punta Alegre and American Beet Sugar made 1922 highs. American Sugar, Cuban Cane and Manati were up for point or more gains, all added to the previous day's advances.

Morgan" stocks were firm, the preferred shares of the two U. S. and Baldwin Locomotive issues making a record for all time at 116½, up 1.

Highs for 1922 were set by Mexican Petroleum, Texas Company, Austin & Nichols, and Kennecott Copper, the latter on sales of 20,000 shs. Or a few sales at Punta Alegre, which was unchanged at 90, slightly.

HOGS OFF THAN UP.

Packing stocks were quiet, the market was slightly more off than with the exception of Armour preferred, which was up 1 point. Swift & Co. was at 102, American Can at 85, and Libby at 10.

Among issues fractionally off were Baldwin, Studebaker, Texas Company, Martin preferred, Chino, Atlantic Gulf, Mexican Petroleum preferred, including Central Leather, Kennecott, Superheater, Pacific Oil, Houston, Southern Pacific at 85 3-8, Rock Island, Rock Island & Pacific, Rock Island preferred, Southern Pacific, Southern Pacific, Texas & Pacific, Central, Rockfort, Northern Railway, Royal Dutch, Southern Railway, New Haven.

Bonds in the quotations were recorded by American issues, Southern Pacific, U. S. Rubber, Wilys-Overland, Westinghouse, Mexican Petroleum, Baltimore & Ohio, Canadian Pacific and Atchison.

CALL: MONEY LOWER.

All day long money opened at the unusually low rate of 3½ per cent., and soon afterward went to 3 per cent., dealings diminished steadily as the day wore on.

Sterling exchange was unchanged, time character included an extension of the rate in Atlas Powder to 4½ points and an abrupt decline of 9½ points in Hudson.

Buyers were strong on the further rise in Punta Alegre, which was up 1½ points, and Standard Sugar and Securities improvements held or increased their gains. Gains of 1 point to 2 points were made by Electric Storage Battery, Willys-Overland and Invest and Consolidated Gas.

Sales of 1,000 shs. or more were reported by Punta Alegre, Studebaker, Atlas Powder, Southern Pacific, Texas Company, Mexican Petroleum, Ann Arbor preferred and Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific.

Atlas Powder was conspicuous among the specialties and patents.

Foreign exchange eased on advices from Paris regarding the attitude of the Reparations Commission towards a German loan.

Conscripting Christians Into Slavery

How Shocking—What About the Christians?

Copyright, 1922, Star Company

Kemal Pasha, leader of the Turks that we have been taught to hate, conscripts all Christians and puts them to work digging trenches in the war against Greece. It seems and is horrible—to conscript Christian men, forcing them to work in trenches.

But Christian nations conscript black labor in Africa, forcing it to work in mines, and elsewhere.

And the Christian nations of the world unite to maintain the sovereignty of Abyssinia. The Abyssinians captured slaves in their own territory and outside. The labor is all slave labor. Even the native servants of the British Legation bring their slaves with them to work inside legation walls. And that seems Christian enough to the Christian world.

When Turks make slaves of Christians; or Christians make slaves of miserable defenceless savages—what's the difference? Answer, the Christian commits the greater crime; he is supposed to know better.

He Had a Nice Time While It Lasted

Mr. Kerensky, interesting, but without staying power, became for a few weeks boss and dictator of Russia. He celebrated by moving into the Winter Palace, where he married a charming young actress. Then he moved out of Russia.

During his brief rule he sent over here an Ambassador to represent Russia. And the United States has continued to recognize that Ambassador, although for years he has represented nothing at all, so far as Russia is concerned. It is now announced officially that the gentleman is about to retire as Russian Ambassador, having paid off one hundred and two million dollars of the Russian government's debts—meaning debts of the Czar's administration.

How much MORE did he pay? Where did the money come from? Who GOT the money? That is an accounting that will never be rendered in detail.

The United States' Duty

The United States Must Define It

Copyright, 1922, Star Company

Mr. Lloyd George, earnest democrat, forever working hard for Britain, says, "The United States' policy hampers Europe."

England would like to forgive fifteen billions of debts that other countries owe HER, but she can't do it unless we forgive five billions in debts that SHE owes us. The difference between the debts is that England's debts are bad debts, probably can't be collected, anyhow. Ours are supposedly good debts, as Englishmen usually pay.

The feeling of Europe toward the United States is a feeling that two gentlemen once had when they called on Mr. De Rothschild in Paris. They suggested that he should divide his fortune with them and he refused. That refusal greatly "hampered their policy," just as our refusal to go over there and be made world paymaster "hampers Europe's policy."

Lloyd George, ablest British statesman in a hundred years, is the good and sincere adviser of Europe. He does not quite put himself in America's place. Suppose we had been half bankrupt in a war with Asia, suppose we had been threatened with defeat by Japanese militarism, how many men, how many billions of money would Europe have sent us?

And if Europe had LENT US billions, would not Europe expect and DEMAND pay?

Women Slowly Improve Men

Occasionally Severe Action Is Needed

Copyright, 1922, Star Company

All through the ages women have disciplined men, making them slowly better. And women still carry on that work with considerable firmness.

Mr. Frank Warren Anderson, a "welfare director," did many foolish things and boasted that fifty women had been his dupes. So says No. 50, who is, or was, Miss Peggy Marie Beal. He said to this lady what he previously had said to forty-nine others:

"Peg, I am a devil, I love no woman." This meant that he had never INTENDED to marry her. She shot him dead, looking herself No. 50, and last. In Kansas City, where the woman will be tried, they will know what to do about it.

There are ladies that gradually make men better by wiping them out, frightening them or enlightening them. There are others that spoil them. One lady, name unknown, called to see the corpse of "Welfare Director" Anderson. And hearing that a lady had shot him remarked, "What devils women are," and went away.

Women are NOT devils, but many of them have been very firm in dealing with men. That, on the whole, has been excellent for men and for women, making the men better and the women more secure and comfortable.

The Girl's Too Young

The Money Does Not Matter

Copyright, 1922, Star Company

Mrs. McCormick, daughter of John D. Rockefeller, objects to her daughter, sixteen years old, marrying "a Swiss riding master, nearly fifty." The objection is sound. The difference in age is too great and no girl should marry at sixteen.

One objection formally offered in court by the young girl's mother referred to the poverty of the bridegroom. That means nothing. He is richer, perhaps, than Mr. Rockefeller was when he married the young lady's grandmother. The legal objection also recites that the proposed marriage might "imperil important property rights." That really isn't an objection. For the chances are at least ten to one that the girl would be happier WITHOUT than WITH the gigantic fortune. These things the mother knows. She is making the fight, as her lawyers advise, to protect her daughter from an unwise marriage.

The Big Handicap

The Voice of New England

Five-Cent Fare

Editor Boston American:

Like the much needed and very much deserved bonus, the five-cent fare question will be manipulated and dilly-dallied till the public, which has to have a hand playing in its ears to realize that there is something being put over, has partly forgotten it. Then it will be given a twist that will make it seem O. K., but it won't be. It may be true that the "L" needs funds and that if we don't pay ten cents one way we will pay it another, by taxes as is often hinted. Why cannot all these really big men, as they are supposed to be, lay all the cards on the table? It seems to me that if we all knew the circumstances as they really are we would take our "medicine" better, since we would at least know why we were taking it. NEVROTEB4.

Harvard Traditions

Editor Boston American:

It is plain that there is a conspiracy at Harvard to lower the standing of Jews there and to exclude many qualified to enter. Even if Harvard refuses to adopt the proposed system of admission, many Jewish students who would ordinarily enter will not do so, while some of those at Harvard will probably leave the university.

Either we should exclude all foreigners from this country or we should give those here an equal opportunity to take part in the race—then let the best men win. It has been one of Harvard's greatest functions to teach this ideal. She surely will not violate it herself, for it is written on her gates and ingrained in her traditions and those of America.

Should Work Together

Editor Boston American:

Why don't the different churches stop "knocking" one another and work more in unison?

One cannot help but notice the very un-Christian methods of so-called Christian churches. A friendly spirit of rivalry is all right; but for one denomination to set themselves up as the criterion for all is absolutely absurd. One should join that church that gives one the most comfort and help. We are all serving the same God, are we not? The Protestant, Catholic and Jew? As there are many roads to a city—so there are many avenues of approach to God. The angle of approach is not important, but the manner in which we approach it.

Let's stop fighting about creed—and spend the energy and time wasted in this way in attacking the enemy—evil.

English Tune

Editor Boston American:

A little more interest being taken this Memorial Day, on account of so many of our soldiers that were brought from France, I went to the Waterville, Me., cemetery.

I was surprised when I heard the band play "God Save the King."

I do not know the song they call "America." I thought I was in England when I heard that air, as I have heard it many times across the Atlantic.

Strange there is not talent enough in this country to write music for this song without copying from England.

I am sure the old veterans if they could hear it would turn in their graves. They are all forgetting the "Star Spangled Banner." C. P. T.

Matter of Rents

Editor Boston American:

A State probe has been started as to why rents are still kept up in spite of changed conditions and the fact that building has begun in many localities. Landlords have found how easy it is to get the money and will not reduce rents of their own accord. Many tenants pay rather than move or complain to the authorities. The latter alternative involves more or less trouble and is often productive of no results. I sincerely hope this investigation will prove more effective than others that have been undertaken.

HEAR THE LION'S ROAR AND RESPOND QUICKLY

By Dr. Charles Fleischer

IN Gilbert and Sullivan's comic opera, "The Mikado," is a clever couplet to the effect that "There's eloquent outpouring when the lion is a-roaring."

Have you ever heard a lion roar? In the zoo, yes—but within yourself you ought to hear him roar.

They tell a tale, a mere fable with an obvious moral, which is the whole purpose of the writing of this article. It is the story of a cub lion playing in the forest and straying away from his sleeping mother.

Presently he is lost. Crying piteously for that mother-care which all the world of animate being wants, the little lion's walls reached the maternal heart of a sheep who had been bereft of her young.

Adopted by Sheep

The sheep adopted and reared the leonine baby, which duly became so large as to frighten the foster mother. But it played with the other sheep, unaware of its royal beastliness.

They were all at their gambol one day when the air was rent by an awful roar. The lion cub heard the new noise all a-quiver. Every fibre of his being was a-thrill. The leonine chord in his nature was touched. Every nerve of him responded to the call of his kind and found voice in his first responsive roar.

Then the cub knew that he, too, was a lion. One sad look towards his foster mother and then with tremendous leaps he was off over the hills to live thereafter the life of a lion.

Who knows but that he might have died imagining himself nothing but a sheep, had not the roar of that other lion helped him to find himself.

But that is not the point. Indeed, the likelihood is that something was bound to happen sooner or later to reveal him to himself.

The point is that he did hear the lion's roar and that he responded.

Sudden Awakening

And that is precisely what happens to us human beings also. You go along placidly, weakly, blunderingly, unaware of the power locked up within you, living your irresponsible, sheeplish life.

One day comes the experience that makes all the world over for you, because it makes YOU over. You hear the lion's roar, AND you respond.

It may be a person, a book, a play, an incident, a sermon—something that touches the innermost You. You are revealed to Yourself, a lion, a very God.

Then not only is great power yours and great wisdom, but You are Power and Wisdom, and these act through you.

If This Is Your Birthday

You Are LUCKY

YOU are a temperamentalist if born today, and always the wretched or ecstatic victim of your own moods. Whatever your life may seem to others, it will always be both more and less to you because your emotional reaction to an experience is fuller than the event warrants.

Today is one of indifferent fortune for general affairs and of extreme danger for all projects involving transportation by water.

This year of your life will be one of extreme anxiety, but you will succeed better than you can now foresee.

A child born today will be ragged in mind and in body and surprisingly mature in early youth.

ARE YOU TRYING TO BE UNNATURAL?

Many men will not permit themselves to act good-natured and happy because they fear giving the impression that they are frivolous and not of practical, good judgment.

So they go through life in an unnatural way, getting and giving very little of the best things in life.

They are constantly striving for effect, and think more about how they appear to some one else than they do about how to be a greater success.

Why should a man who smiles easily think that he must carry a long face if he would get a reputation for good sense?

If it be natural for you to smile—keep smiling.

If it be natural for you to be good natured—do not try grouching.

Be your natural self.

You will get along better and get more out of life, and you are bound to give more pleasure to all those around you if you act your natural, happy self and scatter sunshine.

SEEN AND HEARD

By Lambert and Daily

JOHN N. COLE, the State commissioner of public works, says that $7,000,000 will be spent on the roads this year. This is the second largest amount in the State history, $9,000,000 having been spent last year.

As a result of the insistent demand made by REPRESENTATIVE FRANK E. BARROWS of Carver, an investigation is going to be made of the advisability of distributing auto registration plates in the future through the local city and town offices. The new system is expected to be convenient to the rural dwellers who live far from the centres of population.

WILLIAM E. ROBINSON of the State Department of Correction started a subscription fund the other day to raise $23 to buy a hawker's license for a one-legged veteran whose family was in destitute circumstances. He saw MARTIN M. LOMASNEY, EBEN S. DRAPER and DEPUTY CORRECTIONS COMMISSIONER EDWARD C. R. BAGLEY and had no need to go further.

REPRESENTATIVE MICHAEL H. JORDAN of Lawrence asks that his friends be informed through this column that all talk of his running for the Senate is bosh. He will be a candidate for re-election to the House.

DR. ROBERT E. DYER, chief of the dairy inspection division of the health department, will represent the city at the Bureau of Animal Industry Conference to be held at Hartford today. The conference is to discuss the eradication of tuberculosis in animals.

When you read this you will know that Boston fish is being sold by Chicago's leading fish dealers. For the first time in the history of Boston fish has been sent to the gateway of the West. Atlantic waters fish have been sent as far West as the Pacific coast, touching San Francisco, Los Angeles and Seattle. It is part of the campaign inaugurated to "boost the port of Boston."

H. WARE BARNUM, chief counsel for the Elevated, ought to know as much about traffic conditions at Harvard square and the Stadium as any of the road's experts. He hasn't missed a Harvard football game for twenty years.

GARRETT P. SERVISS ON THOUGHT TRAVEL

By Garrett P. Serviss

MISS J. P. T. of Brownsville, Pa., is interested in the question: "How our brains can think, and what is the velocity of our thoughts?" She would like also to know "whether there is any difference between a well-developed brain and an ignorant one in thinking velocity?"

In what sense shall we understand "the velocity of our thoughts"? In the sense of those who affirm that thought is transferable from brain to brain—in which case it would resemble radiation of energy, such as that which we call light waves, or electric waves—or in the sense of rapidity of action in the brain itself?

If we take it in the first of these senses it could not, in accordance with recent physical speculation, have a greater velocity than that of light, which is regarded as the absolute maximum.

So it would take about one second and two-sevenths to send your thoughts to the moon; eight and one-third minutes to send them to the sun; five and one-half years to send them to Sirius; and 220,000 years to send them as far as that marvellous cluster of giant suns gleaming on the as yet farthest reached verge of the stellar universe that is known by the cabalistic name, "N.G.C.7006."

They would be pretty old thoughts by the time they arrived there—but they might be new in that neighborhood.

If we take the alternative definition of "thinking velocity" mentioned above, it becomes a question how far the speed of nerve force affects thought, and whether thought essentially depends upon nerve force at all. Unquestionably it is only through nerve force that thought can be translated into action, and if thought is, itself, nothing more than reaction to a stimulous which either enters the brain from without or originates by physical action in the brain itself, then the speed of nerve force may be a controlling factor. In that case the velocity of thinking may be defined as the time rate of mental apprehension.

You have perhaps noticed that some of your acquaintances "think quicker" than you do, and some "think slower." Do those whose mental grasp is the most rapid get as good a hold of the idea as do others whose minds seem to work more slowly? If they do not their quick thinking may, after all, be only a blundering rush, and it may turn out that the seemingly slower thinker has the greater average thinking velocity.

Of course all this does not answer the question: "What is the velocity of our thoughts?" But I am trying to show that in the nature of things a definite numerical answer to that question cannot be given. Nerve force is said to travel as fast as 200 feet per second, but can we say that that limits the rapidity with which thought acts?

People sometimes say: "Why, thought is plainly instantaneous. In the twinkling of an eye the mind can travel to the uttermost boundary of the universe. But this is an illusion. To your mental operations physical distance offers no obstacle. Your thought about the border of the universe is formed right in your brain; there its image is created. The mind does not have to go out to that immense distance, the thought of which is formed at home. The distance would only come into play as a factor in the formation of the thought in case, as in our first alternative, the force giving rise to the thought had to travel over that distance like a ray of light.

Medbury Says

The Restaurants Should Either Come Down in Their Prices or Hire Prettier Cashiers

While the restaurants are not coming down in their prices, a lot of them are hiring beautiful cashiers so that it will make it easier for you when you pay your check.

A swell looking girl at the desk can make you take your mind off the restaurant.

One guy used to eat six times a day just so he could have the pleasure of giving the money to a pretty cashier.

If the check was a dollar he used to give her two. The only way she stopped him from giving her money was by marrying him.

Now she can't get a dime out of him.

Pretty cashiers are just as liable to short-change you as the homely ones, only you never discover it.

A man always notices it when a homely cashier short-changes him because he counts the change.

If a pretty cashier gyps him out of a dollar he blames himself for being so careless, but if a homely one makes a mistake of a nickel he wants to have her put in jail as a crook.

There are not very many pretty girls working in restaurants. The pretty ones just stand around and homely ones do the work.

Pretty cashiers make wonderful mathematicians. They're the only ones who can take sixty from a dollar and have twenty left.

The majority of them are miscrooked, but some of them have hands that are built on a detour.

They figure that the longest way 'round is the shortest way into the cash register.

They believe in that old slogan "Give till it hurts" as long as it doesn't hurt them.

And according to the cashiers most guys don't suffer from many pains.

Pretty cashiers are a necessity and if a restaurant can't get them then they ought to make it easier for the customers by sprinkling the checks with ether.

It's the woman who pays, but two stenographers going out to lunch together have a hard job deciding which one of them should pay.

The one who can fumble the longest wins.

The restaurants should cope with the public. If they can't make the prices lower they should make the food better, and if they can't make the food better then they should hire the cashiers prettier.
